17 DIE IN TEXAS.

Colorado, Tex., May 15.—Seventeen dead and 10 persons seriously injured, about 100 injured, the seriousness of which is undetermined so far and from 400 to 500 persons homeless completed the check-up today, 24 hours after the tornado went through Mitchell county.

The path of the storm varied from two miles to a quarter of a mile in width and about 30 miles long. Scarcely a house was left intact. The twister came in the hour before dawn, when the county slept. Some houses were carried through the air and replaced on the ground with occupants merely shaken from their beds. Other houses were cut from their foundations and the walls and ceilings falling away, leaving the families gazing skyward as they awoke.

A three-month-old baby was found alive in a field after the storm; an 18-year-old girl was whisked a dizzy half-mile and escaped unbruised. Elmer Plazel, with his wife and baby, woke up one-half mile from where their house stood when they went to sleep. The house was carried along intact and deposited intact on the ground, leaving even the mirrors unshattered.

Today every church in the city is housing homeless.

Little Rock, Ark., May 15.—Flood, high winds and fire descended last night on Hot Springs with undetermined loss of life and property damage, according to a brief report over a commercial wire which was received here. Communication was broken after being maintained but a moment and the stricken city again became isolated.

The flood followed a cloud burst and the waters rushed down from the hills in torrents, according to the meager report, which added that she broke out in the business district and wiped out nearly a block.

REPORTS UNCONFIRMED

Memphis, Tenn., May 15.—Reports of heavy loss of life in Hot Springs, Ark., were still unconfirmed early today after flood which descended in torrents from the mountain slopes and fire which followed the water had effected undetermined destruction and cut off communication of that resort from the rest of the world except for meager information here.

"MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS" BANQUET JOLLY SCENE; "DADS AND LADS" ANNUAL FEAST HAS NEW RIVAL

Evening One Big Celebration as Mothers and Daughters Banquet Is Held in the City

The mothers of daughters of Bismarck celebrated with a jolly, get-together banquet last night at the Methodist church.

Neither the "fathers and sons" nor the Rotarians have anything on the women when they "eat loose" for a hilarious celebration. Seventy-two were present at the second annual Mothers and Daughters banquet to be given by the Business and Professional Women's club.

The evening's jollity started on the stroke of 8:30 o'clock when the throng took their places at long tables brightly decorated with pink and white carnations and red candles. The piano responded to the touch of Miss Anderson and at a signal from Miss Hazel Nielson, president of the club, mothers and daughters joined heartily in the singing of peppy songs.

A sumptuous banquet served by the Ladies Aid of the Methodist church followed the musical part of the program.

After dinner there was more singing and celebrating. The club women who had attended the state convention of the Business and Professional Women's club at Jamestown were bubbling over with enthusiasm. They were all inspired to talk and pass on the inspiration which they had caught at the conference. Probably never before in their lives had the delegates made such sparkling speeches, such witty remarks, and delightfully friendly talks.

They were all feeling happy. They had a right to, for they had just brought home the bacon—the state convention of B. & P. W. clubs for 1924.

Toast to Mothers.

Mrs. Nellie Evans was called upon by the toastmistress to pay a tribute to the mothers. The speaker did this with a few well chosen words and the quotation of two poems, "Mothers Day" and "When Daddy Builds the Fires."

HARDING LAYS SPEECH PLANS FOR HIS TRIP

Agriculture, Tariff, World Court Expected to be Included in Addresses

GOES TO WEST COAST

Uncertain Yet Whether or Not President Will Make Trip To Alaska

Washington, May 15.—President Harding has decided definitely to make his contemplated trip through the west and Alaska, leaving Washington about June 20 and being absent from the capital about 60 days. It was announced at the White House today.

Washington, May 15.—Having virtually decided on the itinerary of his western trip, President Harding has begun to give considerable thought to addresses he will make enroute to the Pacific coast and in the coast states.

The itinerary as now arranged provides for speeches in about 12 cities, the first in St. Louis and the last probably in San Diego, Cal.

Although Mr. Harding had indicated he regards these addresses as somewhat secondary to the real purpose of the trip his visit to Alaska—he, nevertheless, proposes to prepare them with care. Through them he intends to report to the American people on the stewardship with which he was entrusted two years ago, and also to outline the future policies of his administration.

St. Louis First Stop

As the first step toward preparation he has begun to select the topics he desires to discuss and to assign them to the various cities chosen for principal addresses. In doing this the president is understood to be following a policy of speaking upon a topic of special interest to the community of which the particular city is the center.

The initial address in St. Louis is understood to be of a general nature, somewhat of a preface to the others to come, but devoted to the main to a presentation of the president's views on the proposal for a permanent court of international justice. These views are expected to follow along the lines laid down by the executive in his New York address last month with the addition of new arguments in support of the proposal.

Passing on to Kansas City, the president, according to some of his advisers, will speak upon the transportation problem. In this address it is considered likely Mr. Harding will outline, at least in a preliminary way, the recommendations with respect to railroad legislation which he will make to congress next September. He also will discuss water transportation.

To Discuss McCumber Tariff

The next address will be made at Hutchinson, Kansas and from present indications will be devoted to the general agricultural question the president outlining what his administration has done for the farmers with particular mention of the Fordney-McCumber tariff and credits legislation.

Speeches to be made at Denver, Salt Lake City, Boise, Idaho, and Helena, Mont., likewise will be upon subjects of particular interest to those communities. As for Seattle some of those who have talked recently with the president, understand he desires to announce in that city his new policy for Alaska as based on observation made during the more than two weeks he will spend there. This is contingent, however, on whether he returns to that city after his Alaskan trip or lands at Portland, Oregon, in the latter case the Alaskan address will be made at Portland.

One of the addresses contemplated by the executive will deal with the results of the arms conference and he is said to feel that the logical place for such a speech would be Pacific coast city, the west coast being particularly interested in the four power treaty as well as many of the other conventions which resulted from the conference.

GOOD ROADS OFFICES TO BE RELOCATED

SUICIDE IS ADVANCED IN MOUNT DEATH

Theory Discarded Early in Investigation. Gains New Weight, Officials Say

QUESTION GIRLS

Chicago, May 15.—A three-day auxiliary investigation into the disappearance of Leighton Mount, Northwestern university student, was concluded by the states attorney's staff last night and with it new evidence became public, shattering some previous testimony and adding weight to the suicide angle, one of the theories advanced early in the mystery.

Four witnesses were questioned last night, Miss Dorothy Fuchs, who had examined previously by Harry Warren, 32-year-old boy, who found the skeleton supposed to be Mount's; Dr. Clarence Neymann, former head of the Chicago Psychopathic hospital and Herman Swelbom, a spiritual adviser.

States Attorney Crowe said: "The possibility of a solution gets hotter and hotter as we go along. We have brought out an important tenable theory through this inquiry. We do not pretend to say that either suicide, voluntary disappearance or murder have been proved or eliminated. We have simply found that there are three possibilities in this case and we mean to go to the bottom of every one."

Changed Story

The Warren boy, it was announced, shattered what authorities had believed as substantial proof of slaying accidental or otherwise. He told Assistant States Attorney Gorman, conducting the inquiry, that there were no rocks over the bones when he found them. Previous reports stated that a hundred pounds of boulders partly hid the skeleton. A belt buckle, bearing the initials "L. M." from which Mrs. Mount identified the bones, young Warren said was found some distance from the skeleton itself, young Warren said, was scattered about.

Mr. Swelbom, a Christian Science practitioner, today explained that he had worked with private detectives.

"I worked on the case until Oct. 15 and at that time I felt that the boy was still alive," he said. "That was my conclusion although I had no tangible evidence. I still feel that he may be alive. If he is alive he will not reveal himself until he so desires. If he is dead we may never learn more about it."

OPENING BIDS IS NEXT STEP IN WATER CASE

Cost of Building New Plant to be Determined When Bids Are Received May 28

VOTE OVERWHELMING

Remarkable Majority Rolled Up For Bond Issue in Every Ward in City

Citizens of Bismarck displayed remarkable unanimity of opinion in the city bond election yesterday. The vote on the question of whether the city shall issue $225,000 water bonds was 1257 "yes" to "no." The number of votes cast, 1447, was more than was expected most of the people in close to the city, being more than one-third of the city's voting strength. Many had not gone to the polls because they believed the bond issue would carry, according to information to city commissioners.

The ratio of the "yes" to the "no" vote varied not greatly in most of the precincts of the city. The second precinct of the sixth ward voting place at St. Mary's school showed the biggest vote for the bond issue, there being 85 votes cast "yes" and one vote for a woman voter, against 4. The Richmond school precinct voted 164 to 5 and the Fourth ward 165 to 3.

The bonds authorized up to $225,000 may be issued by the commission to run over a period of 20 years, one-twentieth to be retired each year.

Commissioners Pleased

Members of the city commission were highly pleased over the vote. "We are very glad that it was a decisive vote," said Mayor Lonhain, "and we are pleased with the endorsement of the proposition. It was a good proportion of the total vote, considering the absence of a bitter fight, and the city commission will now feel much more free to go ahead than ever before. The financing plan of the city commission in the water works matter is now definitely stated. It proposed to raise the remainder of the money necessary for the building or purchase of a water works special assessment. The city commission already has found proof to special assessments insufficient and passed a resolution of necessity."

The Next Steps

The next step is to receive bids on the construction of a new water works system. They will be received on May 28.

The city commission in meeting last night heard report the recent order of Judge George P. Flannery, president of the Bismarck Water Supply Company, renewing offer arbitration in the matter of the sale of that plant, and providing maximum valuation of $500,000, letter was referred to the city attorney.

It is probable that after bids received, and the commissioners certain the cost of constructing new plant, which is estimated to be $700,000, a definite decision will be made as to whether it will make a definite offer for the present plant or will go ahead with the building of a new plant.

The vote yesterday was:

	Yes	No
Ward 1, Pct. 1	130
Ward 1, Pct. 2	102
Ward 2, Pct. 1	110
Ward 2, Pct. 2	137
Ward 3, Pct. 1	176
Ward 3, Pct. 2	164
Ward 4	165
Ward 5	79
Ward 6, Pct. 1	109
Ward 6, Pct. 2	85
Total	1257

The men's total vote was 697, "no" 56; the women's vote "yes" 560, "no" 32.

SECOND DEATH OF STUDENT IS INVESTIGATED

Claimed That Northwestern Boy Killed by Auto Was Victim of Hazing

GRAND JURY MEETS

Ce-cds at University to be Questioned in Mount Case For First Time

Chicago, May 11.—Reconvening today the grand jury will resume its investigation into the death of Leighton Mount, Northwestern university freshman. For the first time since the grand jury began its probe, co-cds at the university will be questioned.

Findings of a skelton under a pier in Evanston, believed to be Mount, has remained a mystery insofar as to how and when it came to its resting place. Scores of witnesses, according to reports, have to throw any light on Mount's disappearance.

The state's attorney's office has arrived into the death of Louis A. Auer, Northwestern university freshman, who was killed about three weeks ago in an automobile accident, and announced that today it is prepared to ask the grand jury for manslaughter indictments in connection with his death.

Assistant State Attorney Searles said he had evidence that Auer's death occurred during a hazing episode when the car in which the student was riding was deliberately driven at another student's car for the purpose of ramming it.

Roecon Conklin Fitch, son of the proprietor of Mason county, Lindington, Mich., an old former roommate of Mount, is among the witnesses to go before the grand jury and repeat his story, that has drawn the attention of the state's attorney's office since he first was questioned Saturday night.

Fitch, the state's attorney's staff, first told them he "knew all about the Mount case" but later became hysterical, repudiated that statement and said he referred to Auer's death. An admission that he was sponsor for a movement to "hush up" the talk of the Mount case among the university students came yesterday from James Masterson, athlete and president of the senior class. He said he consulted officials at the university in regard to the plan and received their approval, it is reported.

ASK M'KENZIE ESTATE TO PAY $40,000 CLAIM

Tacoma, Washington, Attorney on His Way East to File The Claim

IS FOR A STEP-SON

A claim of $40,000 against the estate of the second Mrs. Alexander McKenzie will be filed, according to a story printed in the St. Paul Pioneer-Press, which said that Stanley Warburton, Tacoma, Washington attorney, has gone east to take up the matter with McKenzie heirs.

He is acting in the interest of Roy Tyler, formerly of Bismarck and now of Tacoma, Wash., son of the second Mrs. McKenzie. He based his contention of the ground that Mr. McKenzie had arranged to set aside a large group of bonds of the Bismarck Water Supply company for the benefit of his step-son.

The Pioneer-Press story continues.

In the settlement of Mr. McKenzie's estate here, his children waived claim to $50,000 which he had willed to his wife although technically this belonged to the estate as she died a month before her husband although he did not learn of it until three days before his death.

It is from the three children of the second wife, Mrs. Elva Tyler McKenzie, a former Bismarck, N. D. resident, who died a citizen of Yorkers, N. Y., and Attorney Warburton is attempting to recover the claim of Mr. Tyler he said.

Marriage Secret 30 Years

The McKenzie estate became complicated when the existence of his second wife was discovered, his marriage having been kept a secret from even his most intimate friends for thirty years.

The North Dakota political leader was an intimate friend of the Tyler family for many years, associates said. He married Mrs. Tyler after her divorce and established a home for her in New York.

The McKenzie estate outside of the legacy to his second wife is not involved in this development, attorneys said. It affects the three New York children, Alex McKenzie, Thomas Onks McKenzie and Jeannette McKenzie, all of Yorkers, but does not concern the children of his first marriage. Mr. Mary B. Foster and Mrs. Ann McDonald of Canada.

MAKE PROTEST AT ACTION OF U. S. SHIP BOARD

Elimination of Canadian Lines on Great Lakes Is Argued Before Board

Washington, May 14.—The shipping board was charged with lending aid to creation of a monopoly by "one group of citizens over another group" in a brief filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Northwestern and New England shippers using Great Lakes transportation lines.

Under provisions of the merchant marine act ship-owners having vessels under United States registry in Great Lakes have been arguing for elimination of the Northern Navigation Company and other Canadian lines from participation in traffic from between points in the United States and the shipping board at commerce hearings supported their contention.

The New England traffic association and Chambers of Commerce in Boston, Duluth, Minneapolis and other cities declared that the shipping board had appeared "in a capacity that to us is most surprising."

The American shippers in the west are unanimous in demanding established rights of the Northern Navigation and other Canadian lines to participate in the business between American ports.

ROTHSCHILLER IN RUSSIA TO GIVE OUT FOOD

Describes Conditions of Poverty Found in Arduous Trip To Odessa

MANY INSPECTIONS

In a letter giving account of the final stage of his journey to Russia, Jacob Rothschild, President of the North Dakota Citizen's Relief association for Russia, reports a successful arrival in Odessa, where he will take charge of the distribution of food and clothing sent forward by ship from Hamburg, Germany. His journey overland which consumed a period of five weeks was not, however, without its mishaps and delays.

He left Vienna the forepart of February bound for the Polish border at Podwoloczyska, via Cstacow and Lemberg. Arriving there, he was retained by the Polish military authorities five days, before officially being denied permission to cross. The Russians were favorably inclined, but the Poles found cause to dispute the validity of his passport visas, which had been previously prepared by the German Red Cross in Berlin.

A back trip was necessitated to Warsaw where the matter of obtaining further permission to cross was taken up with the American department and the central Polish authorities. After a preliminary delay of five days, during which time due to total impossibility to obtain rooming accommodations he was obliged to share those of a Cunard representative, he was notified of a final refusal to permit crossing of the Polish border into Russia. Reason being that since the United States have no official representatives with the Soviets, in event of misfortune or loss, the Polish consul would there be occasioned responsibility and distress in rendering aid if solicited.

Poles Make Strides. The Poles have made rapid strides in internal organization, have plenty to eat and drink, and evidence a seeming industry and prosperity. The spirit of nationalism is very strong, and every effort is being made to prevent their country rehabilitated from suffering, at the hands of plunderers, the subjugations of the past, according to Mr. Rothschild.

A further retreat to Berlin was then necessary, where transit visas for over Lithuania and Lottland were obtained, and a new route laid out by way of Riga, Moscow. A two-day ride to Riga through a finely wooded agricultural region visibly marked by the influence of the Germanic section, was interrupted save by the changing of trains three times, currency twice, and passing through personal luggage inspection four times. A day's halt in Riga enabled the catching of a special courier train running between there and Moscow twice every week.

After a day and night's journey through a heavily timbered section, the Lettish-Russian border was reached. The Lettish reviewing authorities inspected briefly, but on the other side the Russians exercised a courteous rigid control. Special attention is given to literature of every description. Newspapers and periodicals are irretrievably barred, as well as other reading material not strictly private in contents.

From the border to Moscow the dense forests continued and well, too, for cord wood is the sole engine fuel, an actual fact, which accounts in great part for slow time and frequent stops in which steam is raised. A marked contrast in weather had also developed, for while Mr. Rothschild had departed Berlin on a warm sunny day and no snow, he arrived in Moscow in the folds of a heavy snow storm, and no signs of winter's abatement.

The most important items of a person's possessions in Russia are his proclaiming documents and credentials, therefore, Mr. Rothschild made an enforced four days stop in Moscow, the capital of the Soviet Republic, where he registered his presence and mission at several governmental bureaus, received letters of recommendation and recognition, and secured passage on a special courier to Kharkoff.

Moscow, a rapidly growing city of an estimated population of two millions, is at present a bustling commercial center. Featurely, the city is scattered over an immense uneven area, has many unique, imposing government buildings, includes the famous Kremlin section, and is notable for its collection of 450 colored, picturesque churches.

The next point on Mr. Rothschild's journey was Kharkoff, the capital of the Ukraine, two nights and a day distant. Another halt of five days occurred permitting time necessary to secure an extension of the Ukrainian visa for one month, permission to receive and distribute goods as a charitable undertaking, an order to enable bringing the goods through the customs without delay, a special allowance to cross the Rumanian frontier on the return journey, registration with the police authorities, and finally passage on a special train to Odessa.

Displays Poverty. Kharkoff, also a city swollen by a newly acquired citizenry, displays poverty more accentuated than in Moscow. Three hundred miles to the South and in March, the spring thaw had arrived with all its dirt and slush. Three hundred thousand people live there in too crowded quarters, famine attracts population to centers. Kharkoff is now an overgrown trading hub. It lacks buildings requisite to the housing of its governmental assemblies, hotels and large residences have been requisitioned to meet the demand. The people presented an appearance of hardship and ruin experienced, hunger and cold still not appeased, yet also a spirit of perseverance and endurance which is said to be going

GETS NEW OFFER

Between Moscow and Kharkoff the forests had gradually thinned out, and in the 48 hours journey from Kharkoff to Odessa nothing was to be seen but rolling cultivated fields. The Ukraine is wholly an agricultural state, or desert as it appeared to be from car windows in a season when no snow was on the ground, and black earth unbroken by fence, tree, or hill, stretches away as far as eye can reach. A barren prospect, except for occasional villages clustered on strung out in shallow depressions, or sloping ravines. It was easy to note that all life in that region is dependent upon a favorable growing season, and subsequent good harvest.

Mr. Rothschild is now in Odessa, where in conjunction with the German Red Cross, to whom he says he is particularly indebted for timely aid and influence rendered throughout his entire trip, he is busy arranging the speedy distribution of food, clothing and money; the former having arrived by ship only three days preceding him. The Russian officials and private citizens with whom Mr. Rothschild has come in contact have treated him with every consideration and courtesy. Certainly all appearances point toward a rapid recovery of the Russian people to a normal, established order, he declares.

PASS ANTI-LASH BILL. The banning of all forms of corporal punishment of prisoners in this state at least for two years as a trial measure seemed a certainty when the senate, receding another step in its attitude, passed, 16 to 11, a bill by Senator Turnbull that would ban whipping of felony convicts forever and abolish it in the handling of state convicts for two years. The house passed a bill to abolish all whipping of convicts.

From Oil Derrick to Service Station

THE Standard Oil Company (Indiana) Service Station with its modern conveniences, economical operation, scientific management and quick, courteous attendants, is the last link in that complete chain of service, whose first link is the derrick in the oil fields.

The Service Station visualizes the thrift, the attention to detail, care in handling products and avoidance of waste, which are conspicuous in every branch of the Company's activities in producing, shipping, refining and distributing. These methods insure rigid economy in operation, thus enabling the Company to maintain a low price for its products.

The Service Station is the one link in the long chain which the motorist sees. It is the point of contact between the Company and the motoring public.

In locating these stations, extreme care is taken to see that they are so placed as to meet the convenience of the motorist. That this care is appreciated is made manifest by the increasing demand for extension of these facilities.

It is the ambition of this Company to have a Service Station so located that you can secure your requirements of its products, when and where you need them.

The next time you drive up to a Standard Oil Company (Indiana) Service Station, observe carefully the way it is arranged, the facilities offered for your convenience, the high type of men acting as attendants, and the care and thoroughness with which they serve you.

By doing this you will be able to visualize that intangible factor—the ideals of service animating the 27,000 men and women who go to make up the personnel of this Company.

BROAD PLAN OF HARVESTER CO. IS OUTLINED

Standardization and Simplification of Machinery Is The Goal

HOW IT IS DONE

Cyrus McCormick, Jr., Vice-President, International Harvester Company, in direct charge of manufacturing, has mapped out a very comprehensive and broad plan of standardization and simplification which will result in much benefit to the agricultural industry. There is a definite need for such a plan. Farmers, in fact, have long recognized the advantages of standardizing farm machines. The desirability of having a more simplified line of products with which to work is obvious. The countless varieties of styles and sizes of practically all the tools used on the average farm have even interfered to a certain extent with the effectiveness of the repairs and replacement service.

The desire for better service has led farmers and farmer organizations to encourage in every possible way efforts toward simplification and standardization. The need for a standardization program was recognized by the Government during the war. Manufacturers of farm machines and implements, who were urged to standardize their products and simplify their lines at that time, have continued to further the movement. The Harvester Company, especially, has gone a long way in standardizing and simplifying its extensive McCormick-Deering line of farm machines and implements, as they are called after the Company's two most noted founders, and also replacement parts and materials from which the machines are made.

Standardization Plan
The Harvester Company years ago recognized the need for standardization and accordingly drew up complete plans for such a program. Committees were appointed to study every phase of the subject and determine how the best possible results could be obtained. These committees, composed of engineers, manufacturing experts, and men of long farm experience, went into the matter down to the smallest detail.

Naturally, the place to begin this program was with the raw materials themselves from which the machines are manufactured. The committees accordingly have made exhaustive tests and studies in collaboration with steel experts from some of the largest mills in the country and have formulated a set of standard formulas and specifications for the various materials from which McCormick-Deering machines are made. Hereafter, the steel mills prepared whatever kind of material the agricultural implement men asked for. Formulas for steel to be used for identical purposes, however, often varied widely. Manufacturers did not know positively which was the best steel. Now they do know. This is assurance that in Harvester Company machines, at least, the quality of the material will be uniform and the best for the work performed.

Can Farmer Supply
If the farmer wishes to keep on hand an emergency supply of extra bolts, a very small selection will be sufficient for all his machines. In fact the Harvester Company has prepared a small box of assorted bolts and nuts for this very purpose.

Harvester Company engineers have also given close consideration to the idea of making interchangeable all parts which are common to two or more machines. Of course, in some cases it is not practicable or desirable to make such parts exactly alike, but wherever it has been deemed advisable the committee has recommended its adoption.

Perhaps, the most important phase of this entire work is that part of the Harvester Company's program which concerns the elimination of types and sizes not absolutely necessary. For instance, in 1918 one certain size skid could be supplied in 376 types, each different in some feature. This large variety of types was rendered to sixteen in 1922. Twenty-two sizes of plows have been eliminated. The same simplification has taken place in many other lines. The advantage of such a campaign of simplification to the farmer, of course, is quite obvious. No other movement will have so great an influence on the improvement of farm equipment service as that of simplification.

Let Contract For New School

Gilbert Horton, architect who designed and supervised the construction of the present high school building which was erected five years ago, was given the contract for the supervision of the new high school building which is to be erected this summer by the Mandan Board of Education. Among the visitors to the post and on the program will be C. T. In addition to a general re-union and get together of slope service men, all adjustments of compensations, disabilities, clarification of "paper work" etc., will be effected.

MRS. WILLIAMS DIES
Mrs. Wm. Williams, wife of Engineer Billy Williams, for many years a resident of Mandan, died shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at a hospital where she has been receiving treatment.

Miss Hess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. P. Hess, won second place in the interpretative dancing contest at the sixteenth annual May festival at the North Dakota Agricultural college, Fargo. There high schools were entered in this feature, Valley City, Fargo and Mandan. Miss Hess was only three points below the winner of first place, a Fargo girl.

Due to complaints of farmers who were delayed in crossing the Heart river bridge near the city park, city and county commissioners in a joint meeting passed resolutions calling for the imposition of a $10.00 fine assessable against auto drivers who may park their cars on the bridge and leave them there.

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL
At last a photodrama, constructed on gigantic lines, that sings the long-delayed praises of the firemen of this country. It has been a long time coming, to be sure, but now that it is here in lavish reality, firemen and their hundreds of thousands of friends are rejoicing because it shows in vivid and logical sequences the degree of service the fireman gives to his employers—the well known public.

The production is appropriately titled "The Third Alarm" and is scheduled for its initial exhibition at the Capitol Theatre tonight. That the fireman is a vital factor in the welfare of any community is brought out with smashing dramatic power in "The Third Alarm". It shows not only how diligently he serves but it also depicts in thrilling scenes the dangers he confronts, the perils he faces uncomplainingly in the daily pursuit of his duties.

"The Third Alarm" is not propaganda for the firemen. Keep this point in mind: It is a powerfully dramatic story about a fireman and his little family, of his struggles for happiness, of his failure under the weight of increasing years, of his dismissal from the department and of his comeback in a conflagration so staggeringly big in its scope as to put other screen fires to shame.

Then, too, there is a delightful

THE ETLINGE

"Brass," a screen adaptation of the powerful novel of the same name by Charles G. Norris, will be shown at the Etlinge theater for three days beginning today, Tuesday. The novel discusses marriage and divorce from all angles and in relation to a group of fascinating characters.

An added factor in the appreciation is the fact that Monte Blue, the popular leading man, has the featured role, with Marie Prevost, playing opposite him.

"Brass," a Warner Brothers classic of the screen, is the story of Philip and Marjorie Baldwin, a young married couple who soon find that their ways lead in different directions. Philip is just starting in business, and being a recruit from the country, is fighting tooth and nail for success and caring for little else, while Marjorie is the opposite, a piquant slip of a girl who

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

THE WEEK'S CHIEF EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD

Reparations—Turkey—Pan-America—Prohibition

BY CHARLES P. STEWART.
NEA Service Writer.

Germany has offered France 30 billions of gold marks. This is on condition that France quits the Ruhr.

Thirty billions in marks is about 71-2 billions in dollars. It's a bit less than one-third the allies original claim.

Certain payments in goods are offered too, but the money's the main thing.

To pay the 30 billions Germany proposes to take eight years. She aims to raise the money by issuing bonds, for sale abroad.

If France wants more, Germany suggests a board, consisting of financiers from the leading countries, to decide how much she can pay. This was Secretary of State Hughes' plan.

Germany recalls that France wants security against future attack. She offers it, by agreeing to arbitrate disputes.

WHAT FRANCE WANTS.
France turns down the German offer.

She says it isn't enough. She demands what she calls an "appropriate sum." She intends to decide for herself what's "appropriate," not leave it to an international board.

Before she'll talk at all she insists on abandonment of Germany's "passive resistance" in the Ruhr.

But the German proposal may yet serve as basis for negotiations.

THOUSANDS OF YEARS.
Foreign observers of the Franco-German situation continue gloomy.

Maj. Gen. Allen, who commanded the American troops at Coblenz, says there's been trouble in the Ruhr for 2000 years; probably will be for 2000 more.

He thinks maybe France has lost as much of the Ruhr occupation already as the total amount of her original claim against Germany.

He adds that nobody can tell how long the occupation will last, regardless of settlement talk.

READY TO FIGHT.

Negotiations at Lausanne between Turkey and the powers threaten to break up in a row.

The dispute's over foreigner's rights in Turkish courts.

France especially fears trouble with the Turks. She's sending reinforcements to her troops in Syria. This particular difficulty relates in part to concessions the Turkish government aims to take away from French interests to give them to the American syndicate which Admiral Chester heads.

NEW BRITISH PREMIER?
Premier Bonar Law of England, pretty sick, has gone on an ocean cruise.

Many politicians think he'll return only to resign.

But this won't mean the Conservatives' retirement in favor of a Labor cabinet. It would, if Bonar Law had to resign on account of a majority against him in Parliament; resignation on account of bad health is different.

Bonar Law simply will turn over his job to another Conservative.

Probably it will be Stanley Baldwin, cancellor of the exchequer, or secretary of the treasury, as he'd be called in the United States. Baldwin is very popular because, as cancellor, he has reduced taxes.

PEACE PLAN FAILS.

The Pan-American Conference in Chile has had to give up its effort for an armament limitation agreement.

The scheme fell so flat that the committee wouldn't even report. The North American members had to do so alone, in general terms deploring war but saying nothing definite.

South American newspapers say the stumbling block was the encouragement recently given by the United States to Brazil to strengthen her navy.

WETS AND DRIES.

The United States Supreme Court has held that foreign ships mustn't bring intoxicants within the American three-mile limit, even locked up, for their own use.

France has protested. Other European governments are expected to do so. They talk of reprisals, too. President Harding is quoted in some newspapers as saying the law will be enforced "with consideration for other nations."

The Supreme Court also holds American ships may carry intoxicants outside the three-mile limit. Dries are expected to ask Congress to change the law so they can't.

The New York legislature has knocked out the state law supporting the Volstead act.

FLIGHT RECORDS BROKEN.

Lieuts. Oakley G. Kelley and John A. Macready, United States aviators, broke flying records in spectacular style by making the trip from Hempstead, L. I., near New York City, to San Diego in a single hop.

The distance is estimated at between 2700 and 2800 miles.

Kelley and Macready flew it in the monoplane T-2, in 26 hours 50 minutes and 38-2-5 seconds.

A Successful Man

Among the notable professional men of this country who achieved great success along strictly legitimate lines, was Dr. R. V. Pierce. Devoting his attention to the specialty of women's diseases, he became a recognized authority in that line.

Over fifty years ago this noted physician gave to the world a Prescription which has never been equaled for the weakness of women. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all thru treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakling pains, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it in both tablet and fluid form.

Finishes Comedy Act, Then
Then Makes Evangelistic
Talk to 6,000 People

Albert Lindholm, on the 85-foot flagpole atop the Whitehall Building and 500 feet above the ground, stretches out over Battery Park.

New York, May 15.—Fred Stone, noted comedian, turned evangelist on Broadway last night and the old streets had a new topic for conversation today.

A roar of applause greeted him as he finished one of the eccentric dances that have made him famous and 6,000 persons who packed the Metropolitan Opera House at the National vaudeville artists' benefit performance waited for him to swing into another buck and wing. Instead, Stone held up his hand for quiet.

"I've got something to tell you people," he said.

The audience hushed, for it was remembered that Stone some weeks ago, had professed religion after he had been snowed out for several days on a train in the west.

"Recently I made a statement," continued the comedian, "that has been taken up by the public more than I thought it would be. That was my decision to cease being a passive sort of Christian and become an active worker for God."

"I want to make that statement over again. I want to tell you people that a time comes in every man's life when he wants to come out and take a step like this. When you have done this you can feel secure, at peace with the world and face the future with confidence."

"I have been criticized for not abandoning my profession after I came out for the Lord Jesus Christ. I want to say that my profession is as good as any in the world, and why should I abandon it any more than any other professional man should abandon his when he becomes a Christian."

"God need not be worshipped within the four walls of a church. We may carry the thought of God with us in everything that we do."

The comedian finished his speech, evidently made on the spur of the moment, by asking his listeners to "hit the trail."

A thunder of applause followed him from the stage, a far greater ovation than the one given his eccentric dance.

EYESIGHT FAILS, MAN RELIEVED FROM HIS NOTE

Minot, N. D., May 15.—Judge C. W. Buttz of Devils Lake, deciding in the action brought by C. A. Haines and Mrs. C. A. Haines, farmers, against G. R. Van Sickle, receiver of the First Farmers bank of Minot, to set aside and cancel a real estate mortgage on their home, and a chattel mortgage on the crops there, holds the notes secured by the mortgages were without consideration, or that consideration had failed.

The plaintiff signed a written contract to buy five shares of capital stock of the Savings Loan and Trust company of Minot and gave his note therefor. The shares were never issued to him because the company could not deliver the shares of stock until the note was paid, under the terms of statutes cited by Judge Buttz.

Haines, who is nearsighted and unable to read without a high powered magnifying glass, was approached by a stock selling agent of the Savings Loan and Trust company while harvesting and without his magnifying glass was unable to read the documents he signed. He claimed that when he signed there was talk about organizing the First Farmers bank of Minot, or a farmers bank, and that he was contracting for stock in this proposed banking institution, and not in the Savings Loan and Trust company.

DETROIT LINES SHOW PROFIT

Detroit, Mich., May 15.—Detroit's unified street railway, one year old on the stroke of 12 last night, is a lusty youngster.

During the first 12 months of its existence it has paid $1,200,000 on its purchase price, paid all other running expenses, set aside $4,000,000 in a sinking fund, and after all this shows a cool million dollar profit.

Mayor Issues Report.

The profit is not in the bank, however. It has been used in betterments and extensions of the system, which ranks as the largest municipally-owned street railway in the world.

The figures are contained in the first annual report for the organization, made by Mayor Frank E. Doremus.

Banquet
Jolly Scene(Continued from Page One)
by a visit through the state hospital. Miss Haugch had taken a lively interest in the reaction of her fellow visitors and found many amusing tales to relate of her experience. Praises Music of Jamestown.
She declared that the music furnished by the Jamestown entertainers was one of the delightful parts of the convention. When reports were getting dry, music was always sure to be brought forth to break the regular trend of reports and give the audience a new lease on life. She declared that the skit presented by the Valley City girls, "How it Grew," appeared to be one of the best skits that she had ever seen.

Mrs. L. B. Sowles, vice president of the B. & P. W. club spoke about the lecture given by Mrs. Knox of Grand Forks and the hospitality of the Jamestown people. She declared that it was not until Bismarckers got away from home and saw with what deep interest outsiders took the illiteracy work which Mrs. Alfred Zuger of Bismarck has been doing in the state that they realized the value of such a woman in the community.

Mrs. Sowles said that the attendance of a delegate from the club at the national convention in Portland, Ore., was something to plan for, because at this time national charters will be presented to the delegate representing each club. It will be an annual home coming.

All the speakers sang the praises of the Jamestown club women and all the people who had taken part in making their visit such an unusually pleasant one. The cordial manner in which Minot's representatives withdrew their invitations for the next state convention was mentioned and Mandan's support of the local club in their campaign for the convention was warmly commented upon.

A Successful Man

Among the notable professional men of this country who achieved great success along strictly legitimate lines was Dr. R. V. Pierce. Devoting his attention to the specialty of women's diseases, he became a recognized authority in that line.

Over fifty years ago this noted physician gave to the world a Prescription which has never been equaled for the weakness of women. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all thru treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backbone, headache, weak pains, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it in both tablet and fluid form.

DETROIT LINES SHOW PROFIT

Detroit, Mich., May 15.—Detroit's unified street railway, one year old on the stroke of 12 last night, is a lusty youngster.

During the first 12 months of its existence it has paid $1,200,000 on its purchase price, paid all other running expenses, set aside $4,000,000 in a sinking fund, and after all this shows a cool million dollars profit.

Major Issues Report.
The profit is not in the bank, however. It has been used in betterments and extensions of the system, which ranks as the largest municipally-owned street railway in the world.

The figures are contained in the first annual report for the organization, made by Mayor Frank E. Doremus.

Talk to 6,000 People

New York, May 15.—Fred Stone, noted comedian, turned evangelist on Broadway last night and the old street had a new topic for conversation today.

A road of applause greeted him as he finished one of the eccentric dances that have made him famous and 6,000 persons who packed the Metropolitan Opera House at the National vaudeville artists' benefit performance waited for him to swing into another buck and wing. Instead, Stone held up his hand for quiet.

"I've got something to tell you people," he said.

The audience hushed, for it was remembered that Stone some weeks ago, had professed religion after he had been snowbound for several days on a train in the west.

"Recently I made a statement," continued the comedian, "that has been taken up by the public more than I thought it would be. That was my decision to cease being a passive sort of Christian and become an active worker for God."

"I want to make that statement over again. I want to tell you people that a time comes in every man's life when he wants to come out and take a step like this. When you have done this you can feel secure, at peace with the world and face the future with confidence."

"I have been criticized for not abandoning my profession after I came out for the Lord Jesus Christ. I want to say that my profession is as good as any in the world, and why should I abandon it any more than any other professional man should abandon his when he becomes a Christian."

"God need not be worshipped within the four walls of a church. We may carry the thousand of God with us in everything that we do."

The comedian finished his speech, evidently made on the spur of the moment, by asking his listeners to "hit the trail."

A thunder of applause followed him from the stage, a far greater ovation than the one given his eccentric dance.

FROM HIS NOTE

Minot, N. D., May 15.—Judge C. W. Buttz of Devils Lake, deciding in the action brought by C. A. Haines and Mrs. C. A. Haines, farmers, against G. R. Van Sickle, receiver of the First Farmers bank of Minot, to set aside and cancel a real estate mortgage on their homestead and a chattel mortgage on the crops there, holds the notes secured by the mortgages were without consideration, or that consideration had failed.

The plaintiff signed a written contract to buy five shares of capital stock of the Savings Loan and Trust company of Minot and gave his note therefor. The shares were never issued to him because the company could not deliver the shares of stock until the note was paid, under the terms of statutes cited by Judge Buttz.

Haines, who is nearsighted and unable to read without a high powered magnifying glass, was approached by a stock selling agent of the Savings Loan and Trust company while harvesting and without his magnifying glass was unable to read the documents he signed. He claimed that when he signed there was about on the margin of the First Farmers bank of Minot, or a farmers bank of some sort, and that he was contracting for stock in this proposed banking institution, and not in the Savings Loan and Trust company.

BROAD PLAN OF HARVESTER CO. IS OUTLINED

Standardization and Simplification of Machinery Is The Goal

HOW IT IS DONE

Cyrus McCormick, Jr., Vice-President, International Harvester Company, in direct charge of manufacturing, has mapped out a very comprehensive and broad plan of standardization and simplification which will result in much benefit to the agricultural industry. There is a definite need for such a plan. Farmers, in fact, have long recognized the advantages of standardizing farm machines. The desirability of having a more simplified line of tools with which to work is obvious, the countless varieties of styles and sizes of practically all the tools used on the average farm have even interfered to a certain extent with the effectiveness of the repairs and replacement service.

The desire for better service has encouraged farmers and organizations to encourage in every possible way efforts toward simplification and standardization. The need for a standardization program was recognized by the Government during the war. Manufacturers of farm machines and implements, who were urged to standardize their products to simplify their lines at that time, have continued to further the movement. The Harvester Company, especially, has gone a long way in standardizing and simplifying its extensive McCormick-Deering line of farm machines and implements. These are called after the Company's two most noted founders, and also replacement parts and materials from which the machines are made.

Standardization Plan
The Harvester Company years ago recognized the need for standardization and accordingly drew up complete plans for such a program. Committees were appointed to study every phase of the subject and determine how the best possible results could be obtained. These committees, composed of engineers, manufacturing experts, and men of long farm experience, went into the matter down to the smallest detail.

Naturally, the place to begin this program was with the raw materials themselves from which the machines are manufactured. The committees accordingly have made exhaustive tests and studies in collaboration with steel experts from some of the largest mills in the country and have formulated a set of standard formulas and specifications for the various materials from which McCormick-Deering machines are made. Hereafter, the steel mills prepared whatever kind of material the agricultural implement men asked for. Formulas for steel to be used for identical purposes, however, often varied widely. Manufacturers did not know positively which was the best steel. Now they do know this is assurance that in Harvester Company machines, at least, the quality of the material will be uniform all the best for the work performed. The farmer, naturally, is benefited because he gets a machine which should do more satisfactory work for a longer period of time in other words, he gets a better machine for his money.

Can Keep Supply
If the farmer wishes to keep on hand an emergency supply of extra bolts, a very small selection will be sufficient for all his machines. In fact the Harvester Company has prepared a small box of assorted bolts and nuts for this very purpose.

Harvester Company engineers have also given close consideration to the idea of making interchangeable all parts which are common to two or more machines. Of course, in some cases it is not practicable or desirable to make such parts exactly alike, but wherever it has been deemed advisable the committee has recommended its adoption. Perhaps the most important phase of this entire work is that part of the Harvester Company's program which concerns the elimination of types and sizes not absolutely necessary. For instance, in 1918 one standard two horse wagon of a certain size could be supplied in 76 types, each different in some feature. This large variety of types was rendered to sixteen in 1922. Twenty-two sizes of plows have been eliminated. The same simplification has taken place in many other lines. The advantage of such a campaign of simplification to the farmer, of course, is quite obvious. No other movement will have so great an influence on the improvement of farm equipment service as that of simplification.

Let Contract For New School

Gilbert Horton, architect who designed and supervised the construction of the present high school building which was erected five years ago, was given the contract for the supervision of the new high school building which is to be erected this summer by the Mandan Board of Education. MRS. WILLIAMS DIES

Mrs. Wm. Williams, wife of Engineer Billy Williams, for many years a resident of Mandan, died shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at a hospital where she has been receiving treatment.

Mrs. Williams was suffering from a growth in her throat and had been in serious condition for a number of days, failing to respond to any treatment.

Bathilda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. P. Hess, won second place in the interpretative dancing contest at the sixteenth annual May festival at the North Dakota Agricultural college, Fargo. Three high schools were entered in this feature, Valley City, Fargo and Mandan. Miss Hess was only three points below the winner of first place, a Fargo girl.

Due to complaints of farmers who were delayed in crossing the Heart river bridge near the city park, city and county commissioners in a joint meeting passed resolutions calling for the imposition of a $10.00 fine assessable against auto drivers who may park their cars on the bridge and leave them there.

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL

At last a photodrama constructed on gigantic lines, that depicts the delayed progress of the firemen of this country. It has been a long time coming, to be sure, but now that it is here in lavish reality, firemen and their hundreds of thousands of friends are rejoicing because it shows in vivid and logical sequence the progress of service the fireman gives to his employers—the well known public.

The production is appropriately titled "The Third Alarm" and is scheduled for its initial exhibition at the Capitol Theatre tonight. That the fireman is a vital factor in the welfare of our community is brought out with smashing dramatic power in "The Third Alarm" it shows not only how diligently he serves but it also depicts in thrilling scenes the dangers he confronts the perils he faces uncompromisingly, in the daily pursuit of his duties.

"The Third Alarm" is not propaganda for the firemen. Keep this point in mind. It is a powerfully dramatic story about a fireman and his little family, of his struggles for happiness, of his failure under the weight of increasing years, of his dismissal from the department and of his comeback in a configuration so staggeringly big in its scope as to put other screen fires to shame.

note of romance. The increasing loyalty of Fireman McDowell's wife, her bravery in the face of her husband's discharge, all make for a drama of poignant appeal. There are young people in the cast, also, and their experience in love heightens the romantic interest of the story.

THE ELTINGE

"Brass," a screen adaptation of the powerful novel of the same name by Charles G. Norris, will be shown at the Eltinge theater for three days beginning today, Tuesday. The novel discusses marriage and divorce from all angles and in relation to a group of fascinating characters.

An added factor in the appreciation is the fact that Monte Blue, the popular leading man, has the featured role, with Marie Prevost, playing opposite him.

"Brass," a Warner Brothers classic of the screen, is the story of Philip and Marjorie Baldwin, a young married couple who soon find that their ways lead in different directions. Philip is just starting in business, and being a recruit from the country, is fighting tooth and main for success and caring for little else, while Marjorie is the opposite, a pigmy slip of a girl who wants cabarets and shows and gayety, and who frets at neglect. Their child makes no difference in their lives, and after the divorce they go their respective ways, meeting with a multitude of fascinating adventures, filled with clashing climaxes and situations.

Others in this cast are Harry Myers, Vera Lewis, Irene Rich, Frank Keenan, Miss Dupont, Margaret Seddon, Helen Ferguson, Edward Jobson, Harvey Clerk, Cyril Chadwick, Pat O'Malley, Gertrude Bennett and Ethel Grey Terry.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

THE WEEK'S CHIEF EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD

Reparations—Turkey—Pan-America—Prohibition

BY CHARLES P. STEWART, NEA Service Writer.
Germany has offered France 30 billions of gold marks. This is on condition that France quits the Ruhr.

Thirty billions in marks is about 7-1/2 billions in dollars. It's a bit less than one-third the allies original claim.

Certain payments in goods are offered too, but the money's the main thing.

To pay the 30 billions Germany proposes to take eight years.

She aims to raise the money by issuing bonds, for sale abroad.

If France wants more, Germany suggests a board, consisting of financiers from the leading countries, to decide how much she can pay. This was Secretary of State Hughes' plan.

Germany recalls that France wants security against future attack. She offers it, by agreeing to arbitrate disputes.

WHAT FRANCE WANTS.

France turns down the German offer.

She says it isn't enough. She demands what she calls an "appropriate sum." She intends to decide for herself what's "appropriate," not leave it to an international board.

Before she'll talk at all she insists on abandonment of Germany's "passive resistance" in the Ruhr.

But the German proposal may yet serve as basis for negotiations.

THOUSANDS OF YEARS.
Foreign observers of the Franco-German situation continue gloomy.

Major Gen. Allen, who commanded the American troops at Coblenz, says there's been trouble in the Ruhr for 2000 years; probably will be for 2000 more.

He thinks maybe France has lost as much of the Ruhr occupation already as the total amount of her original claim against Germany.

He adds that nobody can tell how long the occupation will last, regardless of settlement talk.

READY TO FIGHT.

Negotiations at Lausanne between Turkey and the powers threaten to break up in a row.

The dispute's over foreigner's rights in Turkish courts.

France especially fears trouble with the Turks. She's sending reinforcements to her troops in Syria. This particular difficulty relates in part to concessions the Turkish government aims to take away from French interests to give them to the American syndicate which Admiral Chester heads.

NEW BRITISH PREMIER?

Premier Bonar Law of England, pretty sick, has gone on an ocean cruise.

Many politicians think he'll return only to resign.

But this won't mean the Conservatives' retirement in favor of a Labor cabinet. It would, if Bonar Law had to resign on account of a majority against him in Parliament; resignation on account of bad health is different.

Bonar Law simply will turn over his job to another Conservative. Probably it will be Stanley Baldwin.

PEACE PLAN FAILS

The Pan-American Conference, in Chile has had to give up its effort for an armament limitation agreement.

The scheme fell so flat that the Latin American members of the committee wouldn't even report. The North American members had to do so alone, in general terms deploring war but saying nothing definite.

South American newspapers say the stumbling block was the encouragement recently given by the United States to Brazil to strengthen her navy.

WETS AND DRIES.

The United States Supreme Court has held that foreign ships mustn't bring intoxicants within the American three-mile limit, even locked up for their own use.

France has protested. Other European governments are expected to do so. They talk of reprisals, too. President Harding is quoted in some newspapers as saying the law will be enforced "with consideration for other nations."

The Supreme Court also holds American ships may carry intoxicants outside the three-mile limit. Dries are expected to ask Congress to change the law so they can't.

The New York legislature has

knocked out the state law supporting the Volstead act.

FLIGHT RECORDS BROKEN.

Lieut. Oakley G. Kelley and John A. Macready, United States aviators, broke flying records in spectacular style by making the trip from Hempstead, L. I., near New York City, to San Diego in a single hop.

The distance is estimated at between 2700 and 2800 miles.

Kelley and Macready flew it in the monoplane T-2, in 29 hours 50 minutes and 38-2-5 seconds.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

ALL DOUBTS REMOVED

The bond election of yesterday will perhaps do more than any one thing to remove the water question from the list of debatable questions concerning the city. The remarkable unanimity of opinion of the voters leaves no room for doubt as to what they want.

By their vote the citizens overwhelmingly said they wanted the water question settled, they want a municipally owned plant and they expect the city commission to settle the question. There is no need for any more mandates or authority from the people of the city for the city commissioners to act.

Since it had been plainly stated by members of the city commission that the money derived from bond sales could be used either in the purchase of the present private-owned plant or in the building of a new plant, the election does not indicate the choice of the voters in this respect. The voters, however, put the burden of negotiations and execution squarely on the shoulders of the city commissioners, and will expect them to do the prudent thing for the city. Nor will they ask questions of the method, so long as the desired result is accomplished in a business-like way.

It is well that the bond issue vote was one-sided. With the vote standing 1257 to 90, there need be no more elections nor heated debate. The citizens are almost of one mind.

COOPERATION NECESSARY

Preliminary steps will be taken Thursday evening to register members for the Juvenile Band. It will be necessary to have the earnest cooperation of the parents of the city to put over this enterprise. Other cities of the state have done fine work along this line. Velva and Devils Lake have a fine musical organization composed of juveniles.

All children between the ages of ten and eighteen years are eligible to register. There are probably thirty or forty boys and girls in Bismarck who have instruments. Everyone of these should be present at the Will School next Thursday evening for enrollment. Those who have no instruments but who want to join the band should register too so that when the leader arrives they can be given a test and their qualifications passed upon.

Under the auspices of the Association of Commerce it is proposed to place the band upon a sound financial basis. With the school board aiding in the work, the proper auspices are provided so as to prevent such failures as have attended many band efforts in the past.

A juvenile and adult band will be fine assets for the city and aid in the promotion of a community spirit. Two good bands are necessary to carry out the great program laid down by the members of the Association of Commerce.

EXCELLENT WORK

Cooperation between the Association of Commerce and the Business & Professional Women's club resulted in Bismarck landing the 1924 convention of that organization, one of the most useful ones in the state. The delegates who went to Jamestown and secured the endorsement of Bismarck as the next convention city are to be congratulated.

The groundwork was well planned before the convention and all publicity was skillfully handled by members of the Bismarck club. Bismarck will give the representatives of this organization a fine reception when they come here next year.

Lets have more conventions. They help to keep a city on the map and the Capital City should secure its share for it is most conveniently located and has hotel facilities to handle these state-wide meetings.

ANSTIE'S LIMIT

"He is not drunk who, from the floor
Can rise and drink, and call for more;
But he is drunk, who prostrate lies,
Without the power to drink or rise."

Did you ever get into an argument that became heated and wound up close to a fight, with the original bone of contention lost sight of at the finish? It got so, during the last stages of the World War, that the purpose of the conflict was changing every few months.

You probably have noticed the same thing about prohibition.

The real cause that brought prohibition was alcohol's effect on its drinkers and their innocent bystanders. Especially the effect in lowering their efficiency at work, which was why so many large corporations backed the dry movement—and incidentally one of the leading reasons why liquor never will come back.

Americans losing sight of the original cause of prohibition. You rarely hear any one talk about the evil effect of alcohol. Attention has gravitated to the problem of how and where to get it, whether it's safe to drink, and whether it will ever "come back" in modified form like beer—or a sudden reaction restoring whisky to consumers.

Dangerous, to forget the original cause of prohibition—alcohol's effect on drinkers. To refreshen our memories, let's give thought to Anstie's Limit.

Do you recognize the words? Used to be used commonly. Dr. Patton, of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, once defined "an immoderate drinker" as "one who drinks regularly in excess of Anstie's Limit or who may because of individual susceptibilities be unduly affected by that amount or less."

Anstie's Limit means "the daily use of alcohol not to exceed one and a half ounces, corresponding with four ounces of the ordinary whisky or brandy or a quart of beer."

A drinker passes Anstie's Limit when he takes more than a quart of beer or eight tablespoonfuls of whisky or brandy a day.

Offer the average person a drink and his chief question, and usually his only, is: "But are you sure this is real stuff?" Having assured himself that it is, the wise man will ask a second question: "Granted that it's so-called pure liquor, what is it going to do to my nerves, my stomach, my general health, my pocketbook, my family, my efficiency at work?"

EDITORIAL REVIEW

"COMMUNITY CHESTS"

The high cost and endless labor of raising money for charitable purposes have long distressed philanthropists. Even during the war, when the giving spirit was at its height and men and women who had never before given or helped devoted themselves to serving the Red Cross and other similar organizations, the problem of overhead and operating expenses was serious. Those who were asked to "give till it hurts" to all manner of worthy causes often wondered how much of their contributions would actually reach the people whom they wished to help. To avoid duplication, to cut down the cost of conducting "drives," were some of the reasons that prompted the formation of the so-called "Community Chests" in various cities. There are now 120 of them in the United States, and reports so far show that they have been generally successful. During the last year some of the larger cities raised several million dollars each by community chest drives. Cleveland headed the list with $4,250,000, followed by Philadelphia with $2,440,000, Detroit with $2,300,000 and San Francisco with $2,130,000.

The system has, of course, had its critics. Some have complained that the rich give less under it than under the old haphazard plan. Others have raised the usual cry of "the interests" and have sought to show that this method places control in the hands of designing capitalists. These critics forget that the very rich could easily exercise if they wished, the same kind of control under the old system. The objection is based on the firm belief of loose thinking pseudoradicals that all men of wealth are monsters preying upon the downtrodden masses.

The community chest idea has much to commend it. It is perhaps too early to say that in all places it is the best method of handling public charities. Neither New York nor Boston nor Chicago has yet tried it, although as a matter of fact the United Hospital Fund in New York embodies something of the principle. There will always be institutions which feel sure that they can raise more by themselves than they could receive under a pooling process such as is involved in the community chest idea. But it may, rightly administered, do away with needless overlapping of particular types of work which for the time being are especially needed, and it may exercise a wise general supervision over the communities' charitable activities. ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

"Now, then!" said Mister Tatters, the leader of the Ragbies in Raggy Land. "Everybody knows everybody else, so that's off my mind. Now for business. Do you know you have come to the busiest place in this square earth?" he said to the Twins.

"Why, the earth is round!" cried Nancy. "It says so in the geography books."

"Oh, is it? Excuse me," said Mister Tatters, winking at Rag Tag.

"Well, anyway it makes no difference whether it is round or square or three cornered, it keeps us Ragbies so busy at this time of year we haven't time to eat three round meals a day."

"But meals are square! You always speak of square meals," corrected Nancy again.

"Oh, are they? Excuse me," answered Mister Tatters, winking at Rag Tag.

"What are you so busy about?" asked Nick, curious as usual.

"Spring cleaning!" said Mister Tatters.

"Spring cleaning!" cried Nancy, clapping her hands. "That's fun! May we help?"

"But only one time to spring clean the animals that came back from Dreamland where they had spent the winter. It was lots of fun."

"This is entirely different," explained Mr. Tatters. "We spring clean places for the animals and birds to come to. Also we help the spring fairies in every way. You can't hang up clean lace curtains until the house is scrubbed, and neither can the spring fairies scatter their pretty blossoms and flowers around until the woods and meadow and arches are cleaned up."

"That's what we Ragbies do! We spring clean all outdoors. But you certainly may help if you wish. Our first job is to fix up Mr. Scare Crow for the summer. We are leaving at once."

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO HER MOTHER, MRS. JOHN GRAVES HAMILTON:

Mother dear, you will never know how relieved I was when I got your wire and when your letter came enclosing three hundred dollars instead of three hundred.

I bought a perfectly gorgeous bedroom set for seven hundred dollars and used up the other five for all the other little things I could think of in the way of kitchen utensils, little tables, about my room and among other things, a gorgeous smoking set, an easy chair and a floor reading lamp for Jack.

Just before your wire came I got a letter from the James Realty Company and what do you think the mean things did? They sent me the lease which I had already signed with a polite invitation for Jack to sign it.

Now I'll have to tell him the whole story and I know he is going to be nasty because last night he was telling me of some friends of ours who had gone to housekeeping in an apartment just a block from us for which they were paying two hundred dollars a month.

"I predict," said Jack, "there will be a smash up in that family before long. No man can buck against an extravagant wife."

You know, Mother, I cannot understand Jack. He almost seems a stranger to me at times. He is so different from what he was before we were married.

Then I used to remonstrate with him for his extravagance in sending me such wonderful flowers and always taking me in a taxi when we could just as well have gone in his roadster, but he insisted that when I was in my evening dress I should have a closed car.

Now it seems to me he does nothing else but talk economy and he has more than once been nagging me for spending all the money on the apartment and not giving him any to pay on his stock. I just wonder what he would say if he knew that I had had to have so much money from you.

You are absolutely right, dear Mother, in saying that I must not think you will keep helping me out if I get into money troubles. I know very well I must stand on my own feet and now that I have the house furnished and ready to show it to Jack, I am going to live absolutely within our income.

Karl Whitney called on me the day I got your wire and I took him over to the apartment. He acted rather queer and sad like but he said the place was perfectly beautiful; that he never had known I had such taste.

Wasn't that nice of him? He told me you all were very well and said that he was having a lot of amusement out of Alice and her quaint ways.

You don't suppose Alice is trying to flirt with him, do you, Mother? He is years too old for her, you know.

Please let me thank you and dad for all your kindness to me. I never appreciated it so much as I do now.

Kiss dad for me on the top of his bald head and tell him I love you both always.

LESLIE.

FLOWING GOLD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray occupies the most expensive suit in the most exclusive hotel in Dallas. Having introduced himself to the hotel manager, to the president of the largest bank and to the mayor, he managed to secure for himself a writup in the leading newspaper. In the hotel dining room Gray meets an old friend, who is vice president of the biggest jewelry house in Dallas. Gray offers to go to Ranger and sell some valuable diamonds to Gus Briskow, who has struck oil. Barbara Parker, daughter of Tom Parker, returns to her home in Dallas, having spent four years in college.

Now go on with story. They argued that a nation so poor above-ground must of necessity contain values of some sort beneath the surface. But as for other natural resources, they scouted the belief as such.

Nevertheless, petroleum was discovered, and among the fraternity that resulted in it Ranger became a word of contradiction and of deep meaning.

The town became a mobilization point, a vast concentration camp for supplies, and amid its feverish activity there was no rest, no Sundays or holidays.

This was about the state of affairs that Calvin Gray found on the morning of his arrival. He and Mallow had managed to secure a Pullman section on the night train from Dallas.

From the first Mallow had laid himself out to be entertaining and helpful, and Gray obligingly permitted him to have his way. When they had finished breakfast, he even allowed his companion to hire an automobile and driver for him. They shook hands finally the best friends.

The Briskow farm, it appeared lay about twenty miles out, but twenty miles over oil-field roads proved to be quite a journey.

Gray's driver finally pointed out the Briskow ranch. The house, an unsightly story-and-a-half affair, stood at the back of what had once been a cultivated field.

Nobody answered Gray's knock at the front door, so he walked around the house. Over the garden fence, grown thick with brambles, he beheld two feminine figures, or rather two faded sunbonnets topping two pairs of shoulders, and as he drew nearer he saw that one woman was bent and slow moving, while the other was a huge creature, whose bare arms, burnt to a rich golden brown, were like those of a blacksmith, and who wielded her heavy hoe as if it were a toy. She was singing in a thin, nasal, uncultivated voice.

Evidently they were the Briskows, "help" therefore Gray made his presence known and inquired for the master or mistress of the place.

The elder woman turned, exposing a shrewd, benevolent face, and after a moment of appraisal said, "I'm Miz' Briskow."

"Indeed?" The visitor smiled his best and announced the nature of his errand.

The women regarded each other silently, their facial expressions hidden beneath their bonnets; then the mother exposed her countenance a second time, and said, "Mister, this is Allegheny, our girl."

Miss Allegheny, now lifted her head, nodded shortly and stared over the hoe handle at Gray. Her gaze was one of frank curiosity, and he returned it in kind, for he had never beheld a creature like her.

The mother abandoned her labor, wiped her hands upon her skirt, and said, with genuine hospitality: "Come into the house and rest yourself. Pa and Buddy'll be home at dinner time."

There were three rooms to the Briskow residence, bedrooms all with a semi-detached, ramshackle, whitewashed kitchen at the rear and separated from the main house by a narrow "gallery." Into the front chamber, which evidently did service also as a parlor, Mrs. Briskow led the way. By now she was in quite a flutter of excitement. For the guest she had dried her rocking chair, a patent contraption the rockers of which were held upon a sort of track by stout spiral springs. Its seat and back were of cheap carpet material stretched over a lacquered frame, and these she hastily dusted with her apron; then she seated herself upon the edge of the bed and beamed expectantly.

The volunteer salesman spread out his dazzling wares upon the patchwork counterpane, then stepped back to observe the effect. Ma Briskow's hands fluttered toward the gem's then clasped themselves in her lap; she bent closer and regarded them fixedly. The Juno-like daughter also stared down at the display with fascination.

"Please examine them, I want you to look them all over," Gray urged. Mrs. Briskow acted upon this invitation only after she had dried her hands, and then with trepidation. Gingerly, reverently she removed a ring from its resting place and held it up to the light. "My! Ain't it sparkly?" she gasped, after an ecstatic pause.

"We've never seen none—anything, nor been anywhere, yet." It was Mrs. Briskow speaking. "But we're going. We're going to see every place and we're going to see everything with usin' so Pa says. Anyhow, the children is. First off, Pa's goin' to take us to the mountains."

The mother faced the visitor at this announcement and for a moment she appeared to be gazing at a vision, for her wrinkled countenance was glorified.

Although the mother's emotion was aroused by the price marks on the price tags, Allegheny paid little attention to them and began vainly fitting ring after ring to her fingers. All were too small, however; most of them refused to pass even the first joint, and Gray realized what what Gus Briskow had meant when he wrote for rings "of large sizes." Eventually the girl found one that slipped into place, and this she regarded with complacent admiration. "This one'll do for me," she declared. "And it's a whopper!"

Gray took her hand in his; as yet it had not been greatly distorted by manual labor, but the nails were dull and cracked and ragged, and they were hidden in deep shadows. "I don't believe you'll like that mounting," he said gently. "It's what we call a man's ring. This is the kind women usually wear." He held up a thin platinum band of delicate workmanship which Allegheny examined with frank disdain.

"Pshaw! I'd bust that the first time I had a row of taters," she declared. "I got to have things stout, for me."

CHAPTER V
Pa Briskow Buys Diamonds

For perhaps half an hour the women tried on one piece of jewelry after another, exclaiming admiringly, arguing, then the mother realized with a start that meal time was near, and she called the menfolk would soon be home. Leaving Alle to entertain the guest, she hurried out, and the sound of splitting kindling, the clatter of stove lids, the rattling of utensils came from the kitchen.

Gray retired to the patent rocker, Miss Briskow settled herself upon a straight-backed chair and folded her capable hands in her lap; an oppressive silence fell upon the room. Having exhausted the usual commonplace topics in the course of a monologue that induced no reaction whatever, Gray seized a perfectly natural remark about the wonder of sudden riches. He was in a way, thinking aloud of the changes wrought in drab lives like the Briskows' by the discovery of oil. He was surprised when Allegheny responded:

"Ma and me stand it all right, but it's an awful strain on Pa," said she. "Indeed?"

The girl nodded. "He's got more nutty notions."

Gray endeavored to learn the nature of Pa's recently acquired eccentricities, but Alle was flushing and paling as a result of her sudden excursion into the audible. Eventually she trembled upon the verge of speech once more, then she took another desperate plunge.

"He says folks are going to laugh at us or with us, and rich people have got to act rich. They got to be elegant." She laughed loudly, abruptly, and the explosive nature of the sound startled her as greatly as it did her hearer. "He's got to get somebody to teach Buddy and me how to behave."

Now that the girl was beginning to lose her painful embarrassment, she showed to somewhat better advantage and no longer impressed him as bovine, stolid, almost stupid.

"First off, Ma and me are goin' over to Dallas to do some tradin'!" the girl was saying. "After that we're goin' to the mountains."

"Your mother mentioned mountains?"

"Yep. Her and Pa have always been crazy about mountains, but they never seen 'em. That's how me and Buddy came to be named Allegheny and Ozark. But we never expected to see 'em. The drought burned us out too often."

Gus Briskow was a sandy, angular man; a ring of two holes cut in the crown of his faded felt hat showed a head of hair faded to match the color of his headgear; his gray overalls were tucked into boots, and a ragged Joseph's coat covered his flannel shirt.

He came directly in to greet his visitor, then said: "I never expected you'd come 'way out here an' bring your plunder with you. Ma says you got a hull gripful o' d'mons'."

"I have, indeed," Gray pointed to the glittering display still spread out upon the varicolored counterpane.

Briskow approached the bed and gazed curiously, silently down at the treasure, then his face broke into a sunshiny smile. He wiped his hands upon his trousers legs and picked up a ring. But instead of examining the jewel, he looked at the price mark, after which his smile broadened.

Ozark had entered behind his father, and his sister introduced him now. He was a year or two younger than Allegheny, but cast in the same heroic mold.

The elder Briskow spoke first, and it was evident that he feared to betray lack of conservatism, for he said, with admirable restraint: "Likely-lookin' lot of tinkets, eh, Bud?"

Social and Personal

Entertain Teachers With "Sea-Carnival" Reception at Club

The teachers of the Bismarck schools were entertained at a sea-carnival reception by members of the Monday club Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at the Country Club.

All the essential of Coronado or Long Beaches were represented. The ocean swell, mermaids, sea horses, yachts, and revenue cutters were present in symbolic form.

A unique introduction scheme consisting of the compilation of passenger lists for the palatial steamers in port started upon the arrival of the visitors. The reception committee greeted each guest with a warm handshake and a rechristening, which consisted in the pinning of their new name upon their back. Strolling over the club rooms appeared such noted personages as King George, Woodrow Wilson, President Harding, Charlie Chaplin, Pola Negri, Mary Pickford, The Gumps, Mr. and Mrs. Buff and other equally well known English and American figures. The pinning of each individual consisted in writing down the names of the greatest number of these prominent personages as passengers for their ship. The task was not so easy when each guest insisted upon backing up against the wall or against his neighbor, but Miss Ruth Halverson was the successful bather in the contest.

In recognition of her skill and concentrated efforts she was rewarded with a diamond pin, "a dime-on-a-pin." Naturally no stiffness was felt among the visitors after this scrabble for introductions.

The next event in sea sports consisted of a yacht race. Captains were selected from among the teachers to man the ships. The race started upon the stroke of a bell and ended after several minutes of thrilling racing, divided into three heats. Supt. H. O. Saxvik was the victor in the race.

An exciting race among revenue cutters to capture run runners supposedly, the three contestants were tied according to the unanimous decision of the judges.

The tea tables were presided over by Mrs. H. R. Berndt and Mrs. Charles Anderson. At the life-saving station in one corner, life savers, in the form of doughnuts were dealt out to the guests. Members of the committee in charge of arrangements were Mrs. F. A. Knowles, chairman, Mrs. R. S. Towne, A. M. Brandt, G. F. Hillman and E. P. Quinn. All members of the Monday club acted as hostesses.

Entertain Drill Team at Banquet

Members of the Yeoman lodge entertained the twenty members of the degree team at a banquet last night following the regular business meeting.

Following the meeting whist was played by the forty guests during the evening. The honors were won by A. W. Snow and Mrs. F. N. Orchard.

A feature of the 11 o'clock banquet which aroused much amusement and mirth was the large bowl in the center of the table from which extended ribbons to the various place cards at the table, and out of which were drawn unique and startling gifts by the diners. At each person drew his gift he said a short speech on the subject suggested by the gift.

DOWN WITH JAZZ!

By NEA Service

Atlanta, Ga., May 15.—A movement to annihilate "jazz" in the United States is a headline on the program of the biennial council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, attended here by delegates from 40,000 clubs numbering 2,000,000 members.

"Jazz," declare prominent southern club women who are working against it, "is having a bad effect on our girls and on society in general. It must go, and concerted action by the women's clubs of America will wipe it out of existence in short order."

Mrs. B. M. Boykin, president of the Atlanta Women's Club; Mrs. Norman C. Sharpe, chairman of the state committee on citizenship; and Mrs. Alonso Richardson, vice president of the Atlanta Music Festival Association and a leader in women's club activity, are taking the lead in the crusade.

They will ask the biennial council to denounce "jazz" in the strongest terms, and will appeal to the mothers of the country to frown on it and draw their daughters away from it.

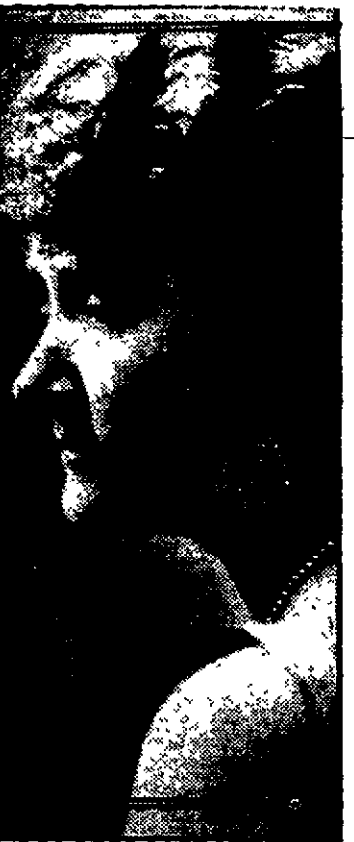

Here in Georgia the club women plan further steps.

According to Mrs. Boykin, the club women of the state will request the legislature at its summer session to put a prohibitive license tax on hand and orchestra furnishing "jazz" at dances and other social functions.

"Let them furnish real music for our young folk," says Mrs. Boykin, "but no jazz."

A determined stand against "jazz" by the club women of the country will mold a public sentiment that soon will wipe it out of existence, in the opinion of Mrs. Boykin, Mrs. Sharpe, Mrs. Richardson and the club women they represent.

Practical Knowledge

Bank service is not merely a matter of clerical routine; nor can it be effective if administered by officials who are not in close touch with the business life of the community.

Bank service to be valuable involves a practical understanding of the problems of the various commercial and agricultural interests, since it is only through this knowledge that a bank can hope to be of assistance.

Daily contact and thorough study have familiarized us with the problems of the business man and the farmer, and the aid that a bank can give in their solution. Our business is conducted to give a maximum of the service that will be of real benefit to our customers.

Entertain Teachers With "Sea-Carnival" Reception at Club

The teachers of the Bismarck schools were entertained at a sea-carnival reception by members of the Monday club Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at the Country club.

All the essentials of Coronado or Long Beaches were represented. The ocean swell, mermaids, sea horses, yachts and revenue cutters were present in symbolic form.

A unique introduction scheme consisting of the compilation of passenger lists for the palatial steamers in port started upon the arrival of the visitors. The reception committee greeted each guest with a warm handshake and a rechristening, which consisted in the pinning of their new name upon their back. Strolling over the club rooms appeared such noted personages as King George, Woodrow Wilson, President Harding, Charlie Chaplin, Pola Negri, Mary Pickford, The Gumps, Mr. and Mrs. Duff and other equally well known English and American figures. The game for each individual consisted in writing down the names of the greatest number of these prominent passengers as passengers for their ship. The task was not so easy when each guest insisted upon backing up against the wall or against his neighbor, but Miss Ruth Halverson was the successful contender in the contest.

In recognition of her skill and concentrated efforts she was rewarded with a diamond pin, "a dime-on-a-pin." Naturally no stiffness was felt among the visitors after this scramble for introductions.

The next event in sea sports consisted of a yacht race. Captains were selected from among the teachers to man the ships. The race started upon the stroke of a cow bell and ended after several minutes of thrilling racing, divided into three heats. Supt. H. O. Saxvik was the victor in the race.

An exciting race among revenue cutters to capture run runners superseded the three contestants were tied according to the unanimous decision of the judges.

The tea tables were presided over by Mrs. H. R. Berndt and Mrs. Charles Anderson. At the life-saving station in one corner, life savers, in the form of doughnuts were dealt out to the guests. Members of the committee in charge of arrangements were Mrs. F. A. Knowles, chairman, Mmes. R. S. Towne, A. M. Brandt, G. F. Dullam and E. P. Quinn. All members of the Monday club acted as hostesses.

Entertain Drill Team at Banquet

Members of the Yeoman lodge entertained the twenty members of the degree team at a banquet last night following the regular business meeting.

Following the meeting whist was played by the forty guests during the evening. The honors were won by A. W. Snow and Mrs. F. N. Orchard.

A feature of the 11 o'clock banquet which aroused much amusement and mirth was the large bowl in the center of the table from which extended ribbons to the various place cards at the table, and out of which were drawn unique and startling gifts by the diners. As each person drew his gift he made a short speech on the subject suggested by the gift.

DOWN WITH JAZZ! WOMEN DEMAND

By NEA Service

Atlanta, Ga., May 15.—A movement to annihilate "jazz" in the United States is a headline on the program of the biennial council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, attended here by delegates from 40,000 clubs numbering 2,000,000 members.

"Jazz," declare prominent southern club women who are warring against it, "is having a bad effect on our girls and on society in general. It must go, and concerted action by the women's clubs of America will wipe it out of existence in short order."

Mrs. B. M. Boykin, president of the Atlanta Women's Club; Mrs. Norman C. Sharpe, chairman of the state committee on citizenship, and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, vice president of the Atlanta Music Festival Association and a leader in women's club activity, are taking the lead in the crusade.

They will ask the biennial council to denounce "jazz" in the strongest terms, and will appeal to the mothers of the country to frown on it and draw their daughters away from it.

Here in Georgia the club women plan further steps.

According to Mrs. Boykin, the club women of the state will request the legislature at its summer session to put a prohibitive license tax on hands and orchestras furnishing "jazz" at dances and other social functions.

"Let them furnish real music for our young folk," says Mrs. Boykin, "but no jazz."

A determined stand against "jazz" by the club women of the country will mold a public sentiment that soon will wipe it out of existence, in the opinion of Mrs. Boykin, Mrs. Sharpe, Mrs. Richardson and the club women they represent.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

ALL DOUBTS REMOVED

The bond election of yesterday will perhaps do more than any one thing to remove the water question from the list of debatable questions concerning the city. The remarkable unanimity of opinion of the voters leaves no room for doubt as to what they want.

By their vote the citizens overwhelmingly said they wanted the water question settled, they want a municipally owned plant and they expect the city commission to settle the question. There is no need for any more mandates or authority from the people of the city for the city commissioners to act.

Since it had been plainly stated by members of the city commission that the money derived from bond sales could be used either in the purchase of the present private-owned plant or in the building of a new plant, the election does not indicate the choice of the voters in this respect. The voters, however, put the burden of negotiations and execution squarely on the shoulders of the city commissioners, and will expect them to do the prudent thing for the city. Nor will they ask questions of the method, so long as the desired result is accomplished in a business-like way.

It is well that the bond issue vote was one-sided. With the vote standing 1257 to 390, there need be no more elections nor heated debate. The citizens are almost of one mind.

COOPERATION NECESSARY

Preliminary steps will be taken Thursday evening to register members for the Juvenile Band. It will be necessary to have the earnest cooperation of the parents of the city to put over this enterprise. Other cities of the state have done fine work along this line. Velva and Devils Lake have a fine musical organization composed of juveniles.

All children between the ages of ten and eighteen years are eligible to register. There are probably thirty or forty boys and girls in Bismarck who have instruments. Everyone of these should be present at the Will School next Thursday evening for enrollment. Those who have no instruments but who want to join the band should register too so that when the leader arrives they can be given a test and their qualifications passed upon.

Under the auspices of the Association of Commerce it is proposed to place the band upon a sound financial basis. With the school board aiding in the work, the proper auspices are provided so as to prevent such failures as have attended many band efforts in the past.

A juvenile and adult band will be fine assets for the city and aid in the promotion of a community spirit. Two good bands are necessary to carry out the great program laid down by the members of the Association of Commerce.

EXCELLENT WORK

Cooperation between the Association of Commerce and the Business & Professional Women's club resulted in Bismarck landing the 1924 convention of that organization, one of the most useful ones in the state. The delegates who went to Jamestown and secured the endorsement of Bismarck as the next convention city are to be congratulated.

The groundwork was well planned before the convention and all publicity was skillfully handled by members of the Bismarck club. Bismarck will give the representatives of this organization a fine reception when they come here next year. Let's have more conventions. They help to keep a city on the map and the Capital City should secure its share for it is most conveniently located and has hotel facilities to handle these state-wide meetings.

ANSTIE'S LIMIT

"He is not drunk who, from the floor
Can rise and drink, and call for more;
But he is drunk, who prostrate lies,
Without the power to drink or rise."

Did you ever get into an argument that became heated and wound up close to a fight, with the original bone of contention lost sight of at the finish? It got so, during the last stages of the World War, that the purpose of the conflict was changing every few months.

You probably have noticed the same thing about prohibition. The real cause that brought prohibition was alcohol's effect on its drinkers and their innocent bystanders. Especially the effect in lowering their efficiency at work, which was why so many large corporations backed the dry movement—and incidentally one of the leading reasons why liquor never will come back.

Americans losing sight of the original cause of prohibition. You rarely hear any one talk about the evil effect of alcohol. Attention has gravitated to the problem of how and where to get it, whether it's safe to drink, and whether it will ever "come back" in modified form like beer—or a sudden reaction restoring whisky to consumers.

Dangerous, to forget the original cause of prohibition—alcohol's effect on drinkers. To refreshen our memories, let's give thought to Anstie's Limit.

Do you recognize the words? Used to be used commonly. Dr. Patton, of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, once defined "an immoderate drinker" as "one who drinks regularly in excess of Anstie's Limit or who may because of individual susceptibilities be unduly affected by that amount or less."

Anstie's Limit means "the daily use of alcohol not to exceed one and a half ounces, corresponding with four ounces of the ordinary whisky or brandy or a quart of beer."

A drinker passes Anstie's Limit when he takes more than a quart of beer or eight tablespoonfuls of whisky or brandy a day.

Offer the average person a drink and his chief question, and usually his only, is: "But are you sure this is real stuff?" Having assured himself that it is, the wise man will ask a second question: "Granted that it's so-called pure liquor, what is it going to do to my nerves, my stomach, my general health, my pocketbook, my family, my efficiency at work?"

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues being discussed in the press of the day.

"COMMUNITY CHESTS"

The high cost and endless labor of raising money for charitable purposes have long distressed philanthropists. Even during the war, when the giving spirit was at its height and men and women who had never before given or helped devoted themselves to serving the Red Cross and other similar organizations, the problem of overhead and operating expenses was serious. Those who were asked to "give till it hurt" in all manner of worthy causes often wondered how much of their contributions would actually reach the people whom they wished to help. To avoid duplication, to cut down incessant demands, to reduce the cost of conducting "drives," were some of the reasons that prompted the formation of the so-called "Community Chests" in various cities. There are now 120 of them in the United States, and reports so far show that they have been generally successful. During the last year some of the larger cities raised several million dollars each by community chest drives. Cleveland headed the list with $4,250,000, followed by Philadelphia with $2,640,000, Detroit with $2,300,000 and San Francisco with $2,130,000. The system has, of course, had its critics. Some have complained that the rich give less under it than under the old haphazard plan. Others have raised the usual cry of "the interests" and have sought to show that this method places control in the hands of designing capitalists. These critics forget that the very rich could easily exercise if they wished, the same kind of control under the old system. The objection is based on the firm belief of loose thinking pseudo-liberals that all men of wealth are monsters preying upon the down-trodden masses.

The community chest idea has much to commend it. It is perhaps too early to say that in all places it is the best method of handling public charities. Neither New York nor Boston nor Chicago has yet tried it, although as a matter of fact the United Hospital Fund in New York embodies something of the principle. There will always be institutions which feel sure that they can raise more by themselves than they would receive under a pooling process such as is involved in the community chest idea. But it may rightly administered, do away with needless duplication of work by different organizations and help in the development of particular types of work which for the time being are especially needed. It can exercise a wise general supervision over the community's charitable activities. New York Times.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

"Now, then!" said Mister Tatters, the leader of the Ragbies in Raggy Land, "Everybody knows everybody else, so that's off my mind. Now for business. Do you know you have come to the busiest place on this square earth?" he said to the Twins.

"Why, the earth is round!" cried Nancy. "It says so in the geography book."

"Oh, is it? Excuse me," said Mister Tatters, winking at Rag Tag. "Well, anyway it makes no difference whether it is round or square or three cornered, it keeps us Ragbies so busy at this time of year we haven't time to eat three round meals a day."

"But meals are square! You always speak of square meals," corrected Nancy again.

"Oh, are they? Excuse me," answered Mister Tatters, winking at Rag Tag.

"What are you so busy about?" asked Nick, curious as usual.

"Spring cleaning!" said Mister Tatters.

"Spring cleaning?" cried Nancy, clapping her hands. "That's fun! May we help? We helped Mr. Rubadub one time to spring clean the animals that came back from Dreamland where they had spent the winter. It was lots of fun."

"This is entirely different," explained Mr. Tatters. "We spring clean places for the animals and birds to come to. Also we help the spring fairies in every way. You can't hang up clean lace curtains until the house is scrubbed, and neither can the spring fairies scatter their pretty blossoms and flowers around until the woods and meadow and orchard are cleaned up."

"That's what we Ragbies do! We spring clean all outdoors. But you certainly may help if you wish. Our first job is to fix up Mr. Scare Grow for the summer. We are leaving at once."

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO HER MOTHER, MRS. JOHN GRAYES HAMILTON:

Mother dear, you will never know how relieved I was when I got your wire and when your letter came enclosing twelve hundred dollars instead of a thousand. I just sat down and wept for sheer joy.

I bought a perfectly gorgeous bedroom set for seven hundred dollars and used up the other five for all the other little things I could think of in the way of kitchen utensils, little trinkets about my room and, among other things, a gorgeous smoking set, an easy chair and a floor reading lamp for Jack.

Just before your wire came I got a letter from the James Realty Company and what do you think the man said? They sent me the lease which I had already signed with a police invitation for Jack to sign it.

Now I'll have to tell him the whole story and I know he is going to be next because last night he was telling me of one friend of ours who had gone to housekeeping in an apartment just a block from us for which they were paying two hundred dollars a month.

"I predict," said Jack, "there will be a smash up in that building before long. No man can buck against an extravagant wife."

You know, Mother, I cannot understand Jack. He almost seems a stranger to me at times. He is so different from what he was before we were married.

Then I used to remonstrate with him for his extravagance in sending me such wonderful flowers and always taking me in a taxi when we could just as well have gone in his roadster, but he insisted that when I was in my evening dress I should have a closed car.

Now it seems to me he does nothing else but talk economy and he has more than once been nagging me for spending all the money on the apartment and not giving him any to pay for his stock. I just wonder what he would say if he knew that I had had to have so much more money from you.

You are absolutely right, dear Mother, in saying that I must not think you will keep helping me out if I get into money troubles. I know very well I must stand on my own feet and now that I have the house furnished and ready to show it to Jack, I am going to live absolutely within our income.

Karl Whitney called on me the day I got your wire and I took him over to the apartment. He acted rather queer and said like but he said the place was perfectly beautiful; that he never had known I had such taste.

Wasn't that nice of him? He told me you all were very well and said that he was having a lot of amusement out of Alice and her quaint ways.

You don't suppose Alice is trying to flirt with him, do you, Mother? He is years too old for her, you know.

Please let me thank you and dad for all your kindness to me. I never appreciated it so much as I do now.

Kiss dad for me on the top of his bald head and tell him I love you both always.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray occupies the most expensive suite in the most exclusive hotel in Dallas. Having introduced himself to the hotel manager, to the president of the largest bank and to the mayor, he manages to secure for himself a write-up in the leading newspaper. In the hotel dining room Gray meets an old friend, who is vice president of the biggest jewelry house in Dallas. Gray took her hand in his; as yet it had not been greatly distressed by manual labor, but the nails were dull and cracked and ragged and they were inlaid in deep mourning. "I don't believe you'll like that mounting," he said gently. "It's what we call a man's ring. This is the kind women usually wear." He held a thin platinum band of delicate workmanship which Allegheny examined with frank disdain.

"Pshaw! I'd bet that the first time I had a row of 'tates," she declared. "I got to have things stout, for me."

CHAPTER V

Pa Briskow buys diamonds. For perhaps half an hour the women tried on one piece of jewelry after another, exclaiming admiringly, arguing, then the mother realized with a start that meal time was near and that the menfolk would soon be home. Leaving Alle to entertain the guest, she hurried out, and the sound of splitting kindling, the clatter of stove lids, the rattling of utensils came from the kitchen.

Gray retired to the patent rocker, Miss Briskow settled herself upon a straight-backed chair and folded her capable hands in her lap; an oppressive silence fell upon the room. Having exhausted the usual commonplace topics in the course of a monologue that induced no reaction whatever, Gray voiced a perfectly natural remark about the wonder of sudden riches. He was in a way, thinking aloud of the changes wrought in drab lives like the Briskows' by the discovery of oil. He was surprised when Allegheny responded:

"Ma and me stand it all right, but it's an awful strain on Pa," said she. "Indeed?"

The girl nodded. "He's got more nutty notions."

Gray endeavored to learn the nature of Pa's recently acquired eccentricities, but Alle was flushing and palling a result of her sudden excursion into the audible. Eventually she trembled upon the verge of speech once more, then she took another desperate plunge.

"He says folks are going to laugh at us with our and-rich people have got to act rich. They got to be elegant." She laughed loudly, abruptly, and the explosive nature of the sound startled her as greatly as it did her hearer. "He's got to get somebody to teach Buddy and me how to behave."

Now that the girl was beginning to lose her painful embarrassment, she showed to somewhat better advantage and no longer impressed him as being so stupidly homespun. "First off, Ma and me are going over to Dallas to do some tramping," the girl was saying. "After that we're going to the mountains."

"Your mother mentioned mountains."

"Yep. Her and Pa have allus been crazy about mountains, but they never seen 'em. That's how me and Buddy came to be named Allegheny and Ozark. And we never expected to see 'em. The drought burned us out, too often."

Gus Briskow was a sandy, angular man; a ring of holes cut in the crown of his faded felt hat showed a head of hair faded to match the color of his forehead; his greasy overalls were tucked into boots, and a ragged Joseph's coat covered his flannel shirt.

He came directly in to greet his visitor, then said: "I never expected you'd come 'way out here on spring plunder with you, Ma says you got a hunk gripful o' d'mon."

"I have, indeed," Gray pointed to the glittering display still spread out upon the varicolored counterpane. Briskow approached the bed and gazed curiously, silently down at the treasure, then his face broke into a sunshiny smile. He wiped his hands upon his trousers legs and picked up a ring. Instead of examining the jewel, he looked at the price mark, after which his smile broadened.

Ozark had entered behind his father, and his sister introduced him now. "He was a year or two younger than Allegheny, but cast in the same heroic mold."

The elder Briskow spoke first, and it was evident that he feared to betray lack of conservatism, for he said in an admirable restraint: "Likely-lookin' lot of trinkets, eh, Bud?"

Bud grunted. After a moment he inquired of Gray: "How much is that hull lot wuch, Mister?"

"Close to a hundred thousand dollars." (Continued in Our Next Issue)

GOING STRONG IN THE WEST

Beat Detroit Tigers in a 10-Inning Night-Mare By a Big Score

Chicago, May 15.—The Yankees have gone into the two strongest teams of the American League in the west with a vim that has bewildered those who saw them in their new stadium. Taking yesterday's game from Detroit, 16 to 11, in a ten-inning night-mare the Yankees ran the string of their invasion, four wins and one defeat. Two wins over Cleveland and a defeat and a victory with Detroit.

Washington, a tough customer in the stadium, aided the Yankees last week, holding off the Tigers while the Yanks were trimming Cleveland but were not as helpful while the Yankees were beating the jungle tribe. Walter Johnson had an off day yesterday and the Senators again were impeached by Cleveland, 6 to 3. By snapping the White Sox, 9 to 6, Philadelphia passed into third place.

Babe Adams of the Pirates made a posture toward celebrating his fortieth birthday which comes this week at the Polo Grounds by using his head against New York after his curves, fast ball and control were lost, winning 4 to 1, by allowing only six hits and three passes. Brooklyn shifted its line-up and the new batting order rapped the Cubs 6 to 3. Andy High and Ivan Olson were withdrawn from the infield and that position filled out Paunier and French, the California $10,000 find at short and McCarren was at third. Cincinnati passed the dropping Cubs and went into the first division by defeating Philadelphia 7 to 3, while St. Louis batted hard and downed the Braves 7 to 1.

Rain caused postponement of the Boston-St. Louis American game.

ALL-McINTOSH
TEAM VICTOR

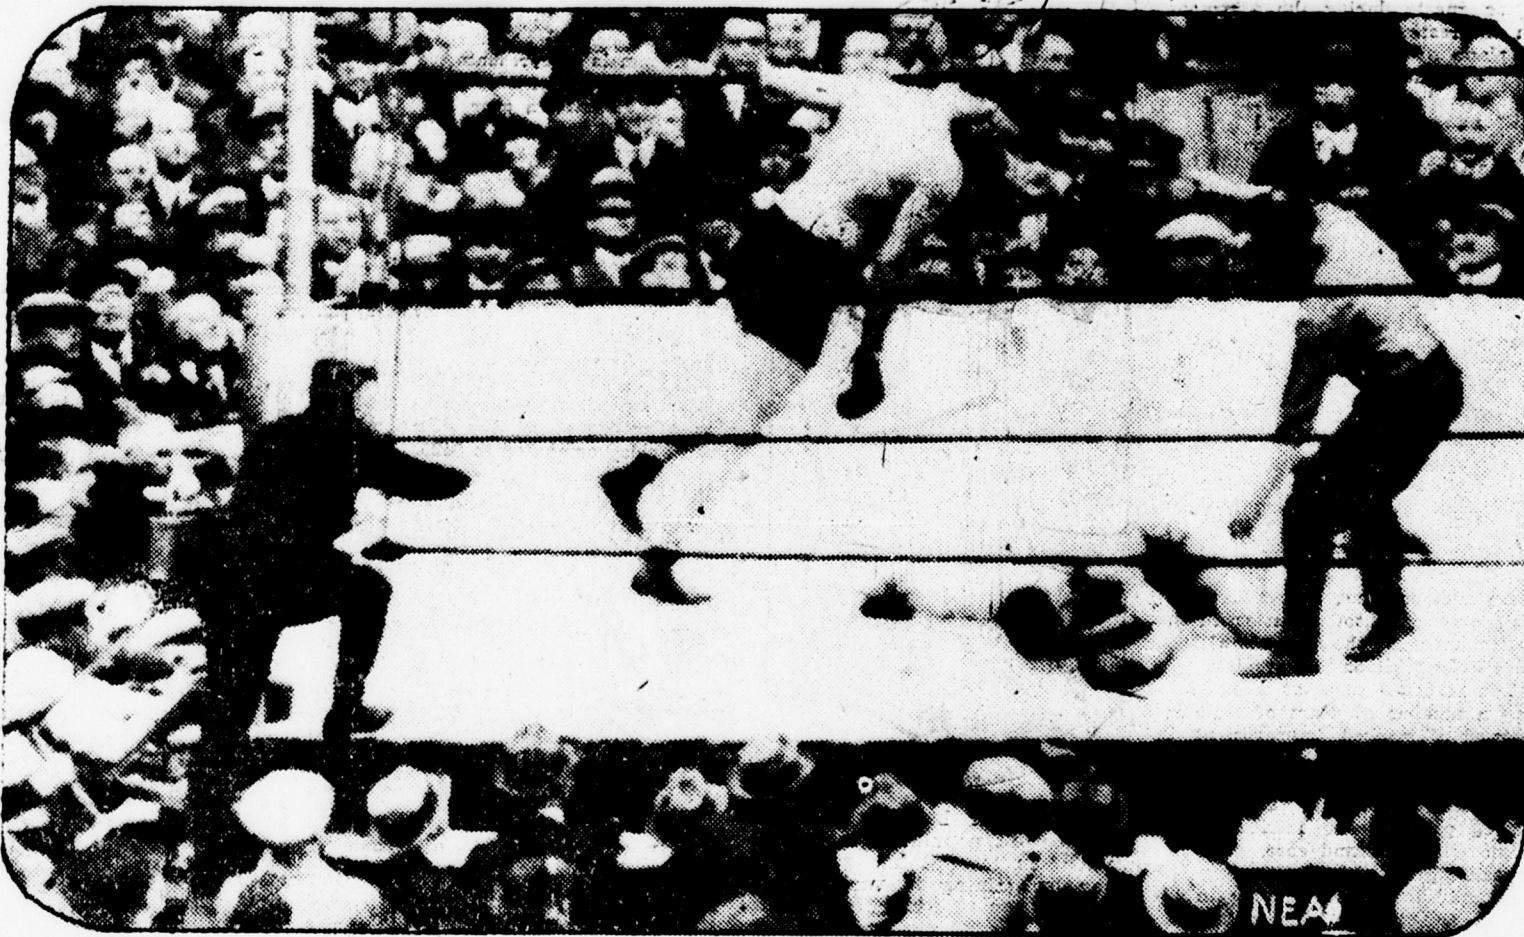

Wishek, N. D., May 15.—The Wishek base ball team was defeated by an all-McIntosh county team on the Ashley diamond Sunday afternoon, the score being 4 to 0. It was a pitcher's battle between Mooney of the all-McIntosh team and Mott of Wishek, with the latter doing the best work but receiving rugged support. Mott, for Wishek, allowed 4 hits and struck out 17 men while Mooney, for the opposing side, also allowed 4 hits and struck out 11 men.

Last year Wishek defeated all the teams in McIntosh county and lost one out of five to Ashley. This year an attempt is being made to pick a team from all towns in the county to defeat Wishek and Sunday's game was one of a series to be played. Wishek is confident that with its regular line-up and a little more practice they can defeat any team picked from the best players in the county.

The all-McIntosh county team was composed of men from Zeeland, Ventura, Ashley, Dargis and Lehr. Another game will be played on the

WILLARD WINS FROM FLOYD JOHNSON IN "COME BACK"

Former Champion Jess Willard forced Floyd Johnson to surrender after 11 rounds of fighting before 60,000 people in the new Yankee Stadium at New York. The younger man fought gamely, but the bell saved him in the ninth, and in the eleventh he was flat on his face as the gong sounded. His chief second told Referee Jack Appel that Johnson could not continue. Picture shows the scene after the last blow, Johnson on the floor of the ring, and Willard called the winner.

Fails Twice to Win Varsity Berth,
Refuses to Quit, Now Rated Star

By NEA Service

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 15.—Perseverance, like confidence, is a mighty valuable asset in any branch of endeavor. Without it not a great deal is accomplished. With it good results are many. It can well be coupled with that old adage, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

Perseverance! Well, that's just what "Big Bill" Van Orden of the University of Michigan track team possesses. In fact, that's Bill's middle name, for his makeup is filled with it. If such were not the case, Coach Steve Farrell and the Wolverines would not doubt be minus a first-class athlete this season.

Three years ago, "Big Bill" came out for the varsity thin-clad squad. He came as a shot. Later, he had the necessary physique to leave the beaten ball. But that about let him out. Just a novice at the event, Van Orden lacked the form required to get distance into his tosses as he was unable to use his natural strength to the best advantage. He couldn't even come close to the 40-foot mark. The result was that he was soon dropped from the team.

The next season, again found Van

Orden on the job. He showed up better, improvement being apparent, but still he wasn't good enough to make a regular place on the outfit. When the scythe was swung, "Big Bill" was once again in its path.

But "Big Bill" Van Orden didn't give up. He kept right on plugging, practicing at every opportunity. And slowly but surely he picked up the correct form and the various fine points which go to make real shot-putters.

Today Van Orden ranks as the premier athlete at his event in the Western Conference; in fact in the middle west. He has won his "first place" in every meet he has participated in thus far this season. Against Cornell he shoved the pill out over 44 feet, and it is predicted that he will better this mark considerably outdoors. He is already being picked as the winner in the shot-putting event at the Big Ten meet in June.

Michigan has an almost certain "five-point" man in "Big Bill" Van Orden this season, regardless of the competition. And all because he had the grit, the perseverance to succeed, despite all obstacles.

"Make It a High Ball"—Said Billy Evans to President

Washington, May 15.—When President Harding officially opened the season at Washington by tossing the first ball to Empire Billy Evans, it was noted that the president, after the manner of major league pitchers, conferred with his battery partner.

As the president stood up in his box to emulate Walter Johnson's pitching style, and Billy Evans took up his position near the home plate, the cameras clicked and the movie operators used up many feet of film.

McGraw Plans
To Develop His
Young Pitchers

By NEA Service

New York, May 15.—Manager McGraw of the New York Giants frankly admits that he is much disappointed in the form so far shown by some of his regular pitchers.

Always resourceful, McGraw intends to get a good line on his recruit material, so that when the pruning time comes he will be able to pass intelligent judgment on some of the young pitchers.

This fact was made apparent in the opening series with Boston, when McGraw sent two of his recruits to the firing line as relief pitchers, Lucas and Blume. Both delivered by holding the opposition safe, thereby winning their game.

In another Boston game he tried out Bentley, the $65,000 recruit from Baltimore, who was beaten, 9 to 2. Bentley is away overweight, due to reporting late because of salary differences.

Whereupon the president grinned, wound up in the most approved fashion, and then delivered a high ball, that forced Evans to extend to the limit for a one-handed catch. "The president sure had a kick in that high ball," observed Billy, as he surveyed the bare hand much reddened as a result of the speed with which the ball was delivered.

MATCHING OF

FIRPO TALKEDDetails Expected Soon to be Settled for Battle of Heavyweights

New York, May 15.—Negotiations for a match between Jess Willard and Louis Angel Firpo on June 30 to take place probably at the Yankee stadium, as a final step in elimination process to select a challenger for Jack Dempsey's throne, reached a stage of semi-completion today.

Willard and his manager, Ray Archer, accepted the suggested date for the match at a conference with promoter Tex Rickard, while Jimmy DeForest, the South American's ring mentor, also put his stamp of approval on preliminary plans.

Discussion of financial terms was deferred until tomorrow at another conference between the principals and Rickard. Both Willard and Firpo, however, as a result of their victories Saturday over Floyd Johnson and Jack McAuliffe II, in the Milk Fund show, are eager to settle the question of supremacy for the night to a title bout with Dempsey, that little difficulty was expected in reaching a final agreement for the match.

Johnson and McAuliffe, according to Rickard's plans, would be matched in a contest preliminary to a Willard-Firpo bout.

Fulton's Share Field

The payroll for the Milk Fund carnival amounted to $85,300, all of which was distributed today to the ten principals, with the exception of Fred Fulton, whose $5,000 share was held up pending an investigation, according to the state athletic commission's custom, of the circumstances surrounding the foul by which Fulton lost to Jack Renault in the fourth round of their ten round match.

The others were paid as follows: Willard and Johnson $25,000 each; Firpo $15,000; McAuliffe $7,000; Renault $5,000; Jim Herman $1,500; Al Reich $1,000; Joe McCann and Harry Draake $400 each.

Fulton and Renault agreed to return $1,000 each out of their share to the Milk Fund.

In the 16th Beckett began to force the pace. It was evident from the ringside that he was seeking an opening for a knockout.

In the 17th, although Smith continued cautious, Beckett caught him with a right flush to the jaw. Smith's knees sagged. He tried to shake off the effects of the blow, but Beckett again swung a right to the jaw and Smith fell to the canvas and was counted out.

LUIS FIRPO KNOCKS OUT JACK McAULIFFE 2ND

Argentine's giant loomed as a possible contender for Jack Dempsey's world heavyweight crown when he scored a knockout in the third round of his battle with Jack McAuliffe 2nd, of Detroit, at the new Yankee Stadium, New York. Luis Firpo dropped his opponent with two right uppercuts. WHO PAID FOR IT?

In an authoritative magazine we read:

"A certain house eight years ago did an annual business of $3,000,000 and the cost of selling the goods amounted to 8 per cent. Good advertising has since then increased their annual business to $15,000,000 and the cost of selling, including advertising expenditures, has fallen to 5 per cent. The salesmen are earning much more money, and the advertising has enabled them to do it, because while their commissions are smaller their sales are made easier and are more than trebled in volume."

Who paid for the advertising?

Not the consumer, for the price of the goods was less than it had been without advertising.

Not the manufacturer, because his total selling cost was 3 per cent less.

Not the salesmen, because they made more money.

Who did pay, then? The same inexhaustible source upon which we draw for the cost of all progress—Old Man Waste.

The most expensive institution we have today is the unsuccessful competitor—the business that drags along for years, eating up rent and salaries, and traveling expenses, trying to get orders that someone else can get and execute better and cheaper.

It is cruel, perhaps, but true that the sooner such concerns disappear, the better it is for the public. The advertising of their more aggressive and better-organized competitors brings the end quicker. And it is the money saved by putting a stop to hordes of these petty, wasteful non-successes, which pays for the advertising and cuts down the cost of the goods you buy.

BRITAIN AND FRANCE BUYING WHEAT, REPORT

Tends to Lift Values, While Wide-Spread Rains Are Counter Factor

Chicago, May 15.—With reports current that Great Britain and France had both purchased wheat overnight on the full basis of present quoted values, wheat scored fresh upturns early today. On the other hand wide-spread rains tended to induce some selling and to check the decided advance. As a whole trade lacked volume and the market was easily influenced. Opening prices which ranged from one-eighth to five-eighths cents higher, with July, $1.25-1.5 to $1.15-1.4, and September, $1.13-1.7 to $1.14-1.8, were followed by slight further gains and then a moderate reaction.

In the later trading there was a noticeable lack of liquidation and there was support forth coming on all declines. The close was firm and at the same as yesterday's, finish to 54 cents higher, July $1.15, to 1.15 1/2 and September $1.13 1/4 to $1.13 3/4.

A player's first shot rolls a considerable distance after striking the ground and comes to rest under the roller, making it impossible to play the ball. What is the proper procedure in such a happening?

The player has a perfect right to remove the roller. Because of the position of the ball he has a perfect right also to lift one ball in order that the roller be removed. There is no penalty to lifting the ball but it must be dropped as near as possible to where it lay but not nearer the hole, before being played.

FIVE—The fielder has no right to stop, and if in the opinion of the umpire, his actions were responsible for the loss of the play, he should be declared out.

IOWA MAN TO TAKE EVJEN'S NORMAL PLACE

Prof. C. C. Swain Is Appointed Head of the Mayville State Normal School

Prof. Carl C. Swain of the Iowa State Teachers college, will succeed Dr. John O. Evjen as president of the Mayville State Normal school on June 15; it was announced today by the state board of administration. The state of North Dakota on the final decision on Dr. Evjen, who had been asked to resign some weeks ago, was 4 to 1. R. T. Muir, Nonpartisan member of the board, voting against his removal. The vote on the election of Dr. Swain was unanimous.

Prof. Swain, who is 39 years old and an Iowa native, has lectured in many North Dakota towns and has many friends in the state, according to Chairman Murphy of the board. He is at present professor of rural education and consolidated school administration in the Iowa State Teachers College, which has an enrollment of 2,500 and is the only state teachers' training institution in Iowa.

Prof. Swain was recommended by President Seelye of the Iowa college, J. M. McConnell, commissioner of education, Minnesota, and President Coffman of the University of Minnesota. Mr. Murphy said, in referring to his duties at the Iowa college, he is a member of the general board of education of the United Lutheran Churches of the United States, which elects the heads of such colleges as St. Olaf, the chairman added. He is a member of the Lutheran church.

Prof. Swain, a graduate of St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., spent two years in graduate work at the University of Wisconsin and Columbia University; taught two years in the public schools of Minnesota, was president of an academy in Iowa one year, county superintendent of schools of Goodhue county, Minnesota, three years; rural school commissioner, state of Minnesota, six years; taught summer school classes in the University of Minnesota; has been lecturer and professor for the Iowa state teachers college four years.

BRITAIN AND FRANCE BUYING WHEAT, REPORT

Tends to Lift Values, While Wide-Spread Rains Are Counter Factor

Chicago, May 15.—With reports current that Great Britain and France had both purchased wheat overnight on the full basis of present quoted values, wheat scored fresh upturns early today. On the other hand wide-spread rains tended to induce some selling and to check any decided advance. As a whole trade lacked volume and the market was easily influenced. Opening prices which ranged from one-eighth to five-eighths cents higher, with July, $1.05-1/2 to $1.15-1/2 and September, $1.13-1/2 to $1.14-1/2, were followed by slight further gains and then a moderate reaction.

In the later trading there was a noticeable lack of liquidation and there was support forth coming on all declines. The close was firm and at the same as yesterday's finish to 3/4 cents higher, July $1.15-1/2 to 1.15-3/4 and September $1.13-1/2 to $1.13 3/4.

IOWA MAN TO TAKE EVJEN'S NORMAL PLACE

Prof. C. C. Swain Is Appointed Head of the Mayville State Normal School

Prof. Carl C. Swain of the Iowa State Teachers college, will succeed Dr. John O. Evjen as president of the Mayville State Normal school on June 15, it was announced today by the state board of administration. The vote of the state board on the final decision on Dr. Evjen, who had been asked to resign some weeks ago, was 4 to 3. R. T. Main, Nonpartisan member of the board, voting against his removal. The vote on the election of Dr. Swain was unanimous.

YANKS KEEP

Beat Detroit Tigers in a 10-Inning Night-Mare By a Big Score

Chicago, May 15.—The Yankees have won their two strongest teams of the American League in the west with a win that has bewildered those who saw them in their new stadium. Taking yesterday's game from Detroit, 16 to 11, in a ten-inning night-mare, the Yankees ran the course of their invasion, four wins and one defeat. Two wins over Cleveland and a defeat and a victory with Detroit.

Washington, a tough customer in the stadium, aided the Yankees last week, holding off the Tigers while the Yankees were trimming Cleveland, but were not as helpful while the Yankees were beating the jungle tribe. Walter Johnson had an off day yesterday and the Senators again were impeached by Cleveland, 6 to 3. By snapping the White Sox, 9 to 6, Philadelphia passed into third place. Babe Adams of the Pirates made a gesture toward celebrating his fortieth birthday which comes this week at the Polo Grounds by using his head against New York after his curves, fast ball and control were lost, winning 4 to 1, by allowing only six hits and three passes. Brooklyn shifted its line-up and the new batting order rapped the Cubs 6 to 3. Andy High and Ivan Olson were withdrawn from the infield and that position filled by Fournier at first and Johnson at second. French, the California $10,000 find at short and McGraw was at third.

Cincinnati passed the dropping Cubs and went into the first division by defeating Philadelphia 7 to 2, while St. Louis battled hard and downed the Braves 7 to 1. Rain caused postponement of the Boston-St. Louis American game.

ALL-McINTOSH
TEAM VICTOR

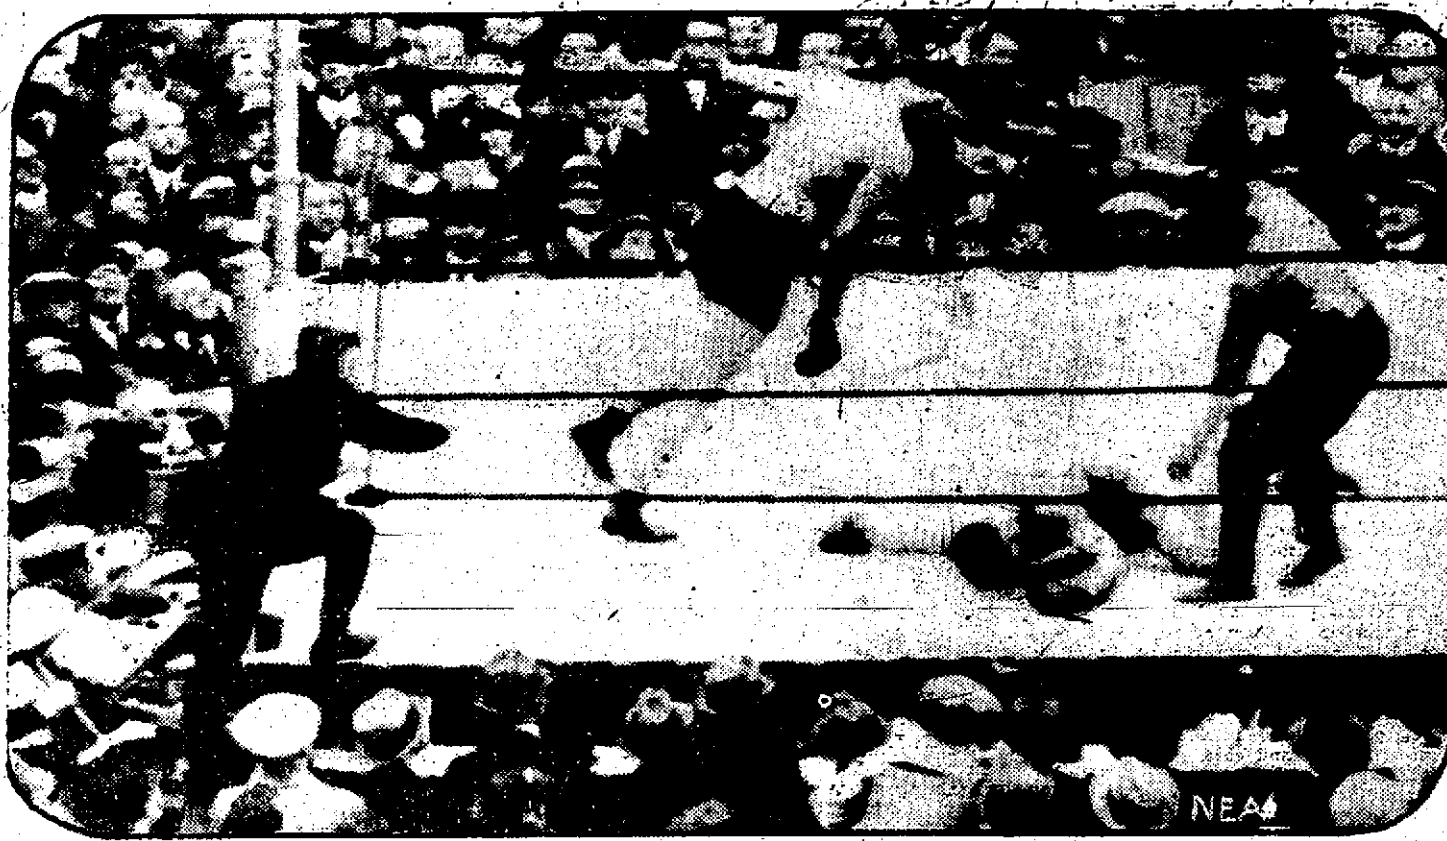

Wishek, N. D., May 15.—The Wishek base ball team was defeated by an all-McIntosh county team on the Ashley diamond Sunday afternoon, the score being 4 to 0. It was a pitcher's battle between Mooney of the all-McIntosh team and Mott of Wishek, with the latter doing the heat work but receiving ragged support. Mott, for Wishek, allowed 4 hits and struck out 17 men while Mooney, for the opposing side, also allowed 4 hits and struck out 11 men.

Last year Wishek defeated all the teams in McIntosh county and lost one out of five to Ashley. This year an attempt is being made to pick a team from all towns in the county to defeat Wishek and Sunday's game was one of a series to be played. Wishek is confident that with its regular line-up and a little more practice they can defeat any team picked from the best players in the county.

The all-McIntosh county team was composed of men from Zealand, Ventura, Ashley, Dansig and Lehr. Another game will be played on the

WILLARD WINS FROM FLOYD JOHNSON IN "COME BACK"

Former Champion Jess Willard forced Floyd Johnson to surrender after 11 rounds of fighting before 60,000 people in the new Yankee Stadium at New York. The younger man fought gamely, but the bell saved him in the ninth, and in the eleventh he was flat on his face as the gong sounded. His chief second told referee Jack Appel that Johnson could not continue. Picture shows the scene after the last blow, Johnson on the floor of the ring, and Willard called the winner.

Fails Twice to Win Varsity Berth,
Refuses to Quit, Now Rated Star

By NEA Service

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 15.—Perseverance, like confidence, is a mighty valuable asset in any branch of endeavor. Without it not a great deal is accomplished. With it good results are many. It can well be coupled with that old adage, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

Perseverance! Well, that's just what "Big Bill" Van Orden of the University of Michigan track team possesses. In fact, that's Bill's middle name, for his makeup is filled with it. If such were not the case, Coach Steve Farrell and the Wolverines would no doubt be minus a first-class athlete this season.

Three years ago, "Big Bill" came out for the varsity thin-clad squad. He came as a shot-matter. He had the necessary physique to leave the leaden ball. But that about let him out. Just a novice at the event, Van Orden lacked the form required to get distance into his tosses as he was unable to use his natural strength to the best advantage. He couldn't even come close to the 40-foot mark. The result was that he was soon dropped from the team. The next season, again found Van Orden on the job. He showed up better, improvement being apparent, but still he wasn't good enough to make a regular place on the outfit. When the scythe was swung, "Big Bill" was once again in its path.

But "Big Bill" Van Orden didn't give up. He kept right on plugging practice at every opportunity. And slowly but surely he picked up the correct form and the various fine points which go to make real shot-putters.

Today Van Orden ranks as the premier athlete at his event in the Western Conference; in fact in the middle west. He has won his "first place" in every meet he has participated in thus far this season. Against Cornell he showed the pill out over 44 feet, and it is predicted that he will better this mark considerably outdoors. He is already being picked as the winner in the shot-putting event at the "Big Ten" meet in June.

Michigan has an almost certain "five-point" man in "Big Bill" Van Orden this season, regardless of the competition. And all because he had the grit, the perseverance to succeed, despite all obstacles.

"Make It a High Ball" — Said Billy Evans to President

As the president stood up in his box to emulate Walter Johnson's pitching style, and Billy Evans took up his position near the home plate, the cameras clicked and the movie operators used up many feet of film.

McGraw Plans
To Develop His
Young Pitchers

By NEA Service

New York, May 15.—Manager McGraw of the New York Giants frankly admits that he is much disappointed in the form so far shown by some of his regular pitchers.

Always resourceful, McGraw intends to get a good line on his recruit material, so that when the pruning time comes he will be able to pass intelligent judgment on some of the young pitchers.

This fact was made apparent in the opening series with Boston, when McGraw sent two of his recruits to the firing line as relief pitchers, Lucas and Blume. Both delivered by holding the opposition safe, thereby winning their game.

In another Boston game he tried out Bentley, the $65,000 recruit from Baltimore, who was beaten, 9 to 2. Bentley is away overweight, due to reporting late because of salary differences.

FIRPO TALKED

Details Expected Soon to be Settled for Battle of Heavyweights

New York, May 16.—Negotiations for a match between Jess Willard and Louis Angel Firpo on June 30 to take place probably at the Yankee stadium, as a final step in elimination process to select a challenger for Jack Dempsey's throne, reached a stage of semi-completion today.

Willard and his manager, Ray Archer, accepted the suggested date for the match at a conference with promoter Tex Rickard, while Jimmy DeForest, the South American's ring mentor, also put his stamp of approval on preliminary plans.

Discussion of financial terms was deferred until tomorrow at another conference between the principals and Rickard. Both Willard and Firpo, however, as a result of their victories Saturday over Floyd Johnson and Jack McAuliffe II, in the Milk Fund show, are eager to settle the question of supremacy for the right to a title bout with Dempsey, that little difficulty was expected in reaching a final agreement for the match.

Johnson and McAuliffe, according to Rickard's plans, would be matched in a contest preliminary to a Willard-Firpo bout.

The others were paid as follows: Willard and Johnson $25,000 each; Firpo $15,000; McAuliffe $7,000; Rematt $5,000; Jim Herman $1,500; Al Reich $1,000; Joe McCann and Harry Dranke $400 each.

Fulton and Rematt agreed to return $1,000 each out of their share in the Milk Fund.

BECKETT BEATS OPPONENT FOR ENGLISH TITLE

London, May 15.—Joe Beckett last night knocked out Dick Smith in the 17th round of a bout for the heavyweight championship of England.

It was another case of age against youth. Beckett started the fight by forcing Smith around the ring with the object of tiring out the older man. There were those among the spectators who believed Smith would not be able to last ten rounds. Not only did Smith hold Beckett well in hand, however, but in the tenth he landed three terrific rights to Beckett's jaw and at the gong had him groggy.

Smith was fighting hard in the eleventh, but it was apparent he was fast tiring. He conserved his strength however, and continued to hold his advantage throughout the 15th round. In the 16th Beckett began to force the pace. It was evident from the ringside that he was seeking an opening for a knockout.

In the 17th, although Smith continued cautious, Beckett caught him with a right flush to the jaw. Smith's knees sagged. He tried to shake off the effects of the blow, but Beckett again swung a right to the jaw and Smith fell to the canvas and was counted out.

WHO PAID FOR IT?

In an authoritative magazine we read:

"A certain house eight years ago did an annual business of $3,000,000 and the cost of selling the goods amounted to 8 per cent. Good advertising has since then increased their annual business to $15,000,000 and the cost of selling, including advertising expenditures, has fallen to 5 per cent. The salesmen are earning much more money, and the advertising has enabled them to do it, because while their commissions are smaller their sales are made easier and are more than trebled in volume."

Who paid for the advertising?

Not the consumer, for the price of the goods was less than it had been without advertising.

Not the manufacturer, because his total selling cost was 3 per cent less.

Not the salesmen, because they made more money.

Who did pay, then? The same inexhaustible source upon which we draw for the cost of all progress—Old Man Waste.

The most expensive institution we have today is the unsuccessful competitor—the business that drags along for years, eating up rent and salaries, and traveling expenses, trying to get orders that someone else can get and execute better and cheaper.

It is cruel, perhaps, but true that the sooner such concerns disappear, the better it is for the public. The advertising of their more aggressive and better-organized competitors brings the end quicker. And it is the money saved by putting a stop to hordes of these petty, wasteful non-successes, which pays for the advertising and cuts down the cost of the goods you buy.

STARVED AND ROBBED CREW RELATE TALE

Wierd Story of Rum Running, Double-Crossing, Battles With Seas, Related

START WITH 8,000 CASES

New York, May 15.—A starved and robbed crew, victimized at every point of the compass as they told it, drifted with the tide into quarantine yesterday. After being taken ashore to eat their first square meal in a week or so they told federal officials a story which the latter regarded as the most important information received since it was decided to put an end to rum running.

The skipper unfolded a tale of deception, thievery, smuggling, piracy, starvation and helplessness, and before he had dipped his digits into a finger bowl federal investigators were hunting for headquarter of a gigantic bootlegging syndicate he described as being in New York. He said it was the controlling factor in rum running.

Many Details Withheld
The full nature of the confidences was not revealed but assistant United States Attorney Clark, who questioned Captain C. Bidon and three of his crew said the vessel, the British yacht Yankton, would be labeled under the mercantile law and sold, to pay the crew who have been away from Havana, their home port, since early in January. Mr. Clark intimated he would seek A. E. Corns, listed on the Yankton's manifest as from Miami, Florida, who left the ship a month ago with a party of rum runners who carried away 3,500 cases of grain alcohol. Corns told Captain Bidon he was going ashore to get food and fuel and arrange for payment of the crew. Whether Corns disappeared purposely or was spirited away Captain Bidon would like to know.

Started With 8,000 Cases
Captain Bidon of Nassau, B. I., recruited his crew at Havana shortly after New Year for a quick trip to St. Pierre, Miquelon, with 8,000 cases of grain alcohol and a few bales of Cuban tobacco. The crew were informed, when the high seas were reached, they could not correspond with any one ashore and could not leave the vessel until anchor was dropped in Havana again. That was the first "double cross," he said.

About February 19 the Yankton sighted Ambrose lightship when a man, described as a representative of New York bootlegging interests—whose entry into the story was left obscure—ordered Captain Bidon to proceed to Providence, R. I. That port was not touched, however, Captain Bidon said, but in the vicinity of Block Island, two motor launches appeared alongside and lighted away two thousand cases of alcohol and two thousand pounds of tobacco.

Another Double Cross
Captain Bidon learned afterwards he was represented as saying, that the consignee ashore reported never receiving the shipment, so the navigator marked another "double X" in his log.

For five weeks the Yankton remained hove-to then went to Montauk Point under instructions and unloaded 3,500 cases of alcohol to the Cavalier, a British schooner. That was where Corns disappeared and where the next "double X" was entered in the log.

Still holding part of their original cargo, but shy of biscuit and steam coal, the crew broke up most of the wooden furnishings of the ship and headed for Rum Row. On their arrival, said the captain, two tugs came alongside and forty armed men swinging guns, briskly boarded the Yankton and took the remainder of its cargo. Captain Bidon said one of the boarding party made some unintelligible reference to taking under orders of a New York bootlegging syndicate. He put down another "double X."

With the bunkers holding nothing but coal dust and the galley scraped of potato peels the crew decided to help around for New York bay, and a square meal.

"TOO MUCH BUSINESS" IRKS NEW, U. S. POSTAL HEAD

HARRY S. NEW

By Harry S. New
NEA Service Writer
Washington, May 15.—Too much business!

That's what's troubling Harry S. New, postmaster general at the end of his first month as head of Uncle Sam's postal service. New, it is unofficially reported here, is considering violating the law in order to maintain deliveries and to prevent a demoralizing breakdown in postal service.

The "violation" will consist in shifting certain appropriations for maintenance of the service which are rigidly fixed by law—by law which New, as a senator, supported.

New is reported to have conferred with President Harding with regard to taking this action. With the volume of mail matter increasing at an unprecedented rate, New and his assistants are lying awake nights trying to devise ways to make the department live within the Congressional appropriation limits.

Early in March a blanket order was sent to city postmasters to cut delivery expenses to the limit. The extent of these cuts was left to the discretion of postmasters.

As a result, many postmasters cut more deeply than discretely. A large percentage of them sought to ing the meeting, committed themselves to a stringent enforcement of the laws.

Today the board made a call on former deputy wardens to return to the board such badges of authority as they may have in their possession. A large number of these are scattered over the state, and the board is anxious to have all of them returned.

A general reorganization of the game warden staff is planned.

The board will seek the co-operation of sportsmen in their program for law enforcement.

FISHING IN STATE LAKES OPENS MAY 16

Jamestown, N. D., May 15.—This is the week that North Dakota Isaac Waltons are wearing the smile that goes with contentment, for bait is plentiful and the season opens for pike and perch on May 16. Local tackle merchants report a growing business as the opening of the season draws near.

A. B. Sorenson, manager of the Spiritwood Lake pavilion near Jamestown and other guardians of the lakes and streams of the state report retrench on parcel post deliveries. In some towns where two deliveries a day had been made, one delivery was ordered. In New York, where six deliveries were cut to five the operation was less painful.

But the immediate effect was a loud, and nationwide yelp on the part of the public. The reputation for good mail service which Will Hays had built up, seemed to be forgotten.

Mail service curtailed—with the volume of business admittedly increasing! Why? Wherefore? What's the big idea? The public wanted to know.

Quick admonition was sent to postmasters that they were expected to use some judgment in effecting the curtailments.

Simultaneously, assurances were handed to the press, for distribution to the public, that the postal service and that the mails will be delivered—eventually, if not now.

Meantime, with less than three months to go to the end of the fiscal year, a deficit of perhaps $40,000,000 is in sight. There seems no hope of holding it under $30,000,000 and it may reach $60,000,000.

Total appropriations for the year are $73,793,766.50. This is an increase of about 4 per cent or some $28,000,000 over the expenditures for 1922, which Congress believed would allow for normal postal growth.

A check made on postal business for the nine months ending March 13, however, indicates an increase in the volume of business of 13.12 per cent, or about double the average annual increase for the past 40 years.

IN HOT WATER
Wherefore, Secretary New is having his troubles. The more business, the more expense and the greater deficit he must report.

For the postoffice department, unlike a business house, does not increase its income in proportion to increased revenue. All earnings are turned into the United States treasury, and the service is called on to operate within the Congressional appropriation.

Still, postal deficits will be nothing new—no reflection on New. In fact, they're the regular thing. Bureaucratic built up surpluses while postmaster general—and the bigger the surplus the louder the public yelled for better service.

So, if New goes ahead on his latest "service not surplus" decision, he still may offset the effect of the March retrenchment order.

Plump Cheeks and Bright Smiles Mark Russian Children Saved by A. R. A. From Perils of Famine

An infant industry whose gross returns for the first seventeen months of its existence were in the neighborhood of $14,500,000 is being liquidated. On March 15 the American Relief Administration of which Herbert Hoover is chairman discontinued its sales of food and clothing remittances to Russia. The sale of food remittances began late in the fall of 1921 and the sale of clothing packages started in November of last year. More than a million $10 food packages were sold and close to forty thousand $20 clothing packages.

The delivery of the packages continues even though the sale of the remittances has ended, for, although some deliveries are completed sooner, three months from the time of purchase is the usual allowance made for the receipt of the package by the designated consignee in Russia.

The operation was conducted by the American Relief Administration in connection with its elaborate and extensive feeding program by which, it is estimated that no less than 11,000,000 Russian lives were saved. It was carried on without profit, the excess of selling price over cost being used to extend the child-feeding operations and to pay the administrative costs of the whole relief operation so that, as Mr. Hoover wrote in his report to President Harding, "there has not been a deduction of one penny for A.R.A. administration purposes either from the funds provided by Congress or from funds provided by public charity in the United States."

The A. R. A. is continuing its work of child-feeding in Russia, and will continue it at least until the next harvest. Provision has been made to give a supplementary meal daily to as many as 3,000,000 children, principally those in government homes, orphanages and hospitals, where malnutrition is still much in evidence. Medical relief will also be continued among the 12,000 hospitals and institutions to which supplies have already been distributed, selection to be made in accordance with the degree of efficiency in management and with the need which exists.

Kamm impressed me most, no doubt because of his marvelous sliding ability around third base.

Opening the American League season in New York, I met Umpire Brick Owens, who the day previous had finished working the long series between the Giants and the White Sox. Owens had the opportunity of seeing Kamm in action in about 15 games with the Giants, as well as some other exhibition contests.

"What do you think about Kamm?" I asked Owens.
"He's a better ball player than even his press agents have touted him, particularly when it comes to fielding," replied Owens.

"Kamm can do anything Jimmy Collins or Bill Bradley did, and then has a few tricks of his own."

"Well, I am not as positive about his hitting as his fielding, but I feel pretty sure he will hit more than a lot of third sackers who are holding down regular jobs in the big show."

The way Owens sized up Kamm convinced me that Kamm was worth every cent the White Sox paid for him. However, a few evenings later any doubt that may have still existed as to Kamm's ability to hit was dispelled. Bumped into Jack Bentley and Frank Snyder, star catcher of the New York Giants, on Broadway, the Giants being scheduled in Brooklyn.

In the two world series between the Giants and the Yankees, Snyder did practically all the catching for McGraw's club and his work would have been hard to improve upon. His handling of pitchers was perfect, rarely did he err in his selection of pitches for the Yankee sluggers.

"I didn't take long for the conversation to switch to Kamm, and the first question I asked Snyder was if he could hit."

"Unless Kamm hit away above his head in the series with the Giants, he won't have any trouble holding up his end in the American League," replied Snyder.

"I had been told he was just an ordinary hitter, but he began to slam our pitchers from the start. Then I began to work on him. I think I had our pitchers work harder on Kamm than any other member of the Sox, yet his work at the bat featured the series."

"On what Kamm showed me in 15 games I rate him a mighty good hitter. He's a big leaguer right now. Chicago won't have to worry about a third sacker for years to come."
